Find opportunity and value with CCCC

Take a closer look at the Conference on College Composition and Communication

CCCC is the leading organization in writing studies, offering not only the largest meeting of writing specialists in the world every spring but also a relevant and strategic repository of resources, research, and networking channels to help you be your best.

- CCCC’s extensive grants and awards program provides opportunities to be recognized for your scholarship, to apply for funds for your next research project, or to receive travel support to learn from and with your colleagues.
- College Composition and Communication maintains a space for thoughtful examination of current issues in the field.
- CCCC sponsors advocacy efforts, inviting you to engage with legislative and regulatory issues that matter to you at the federal, state, and local levels.

There’s a lot we can do together as members of CCCC. The first step is simple. If you’re not a member, join CCCC by subscribing to College Composition and Communication today, and if you are a member, share the benefits of CCCC by telling a friend.

On the Cover:
Special thanks to Steven Gardner for providing the photographs on the cover of this program. The photos depict three pieces of Gardner’s artwork at Yakima Valley College in Yakima, Washington.

“El Abrecaminos,” “The Torch,” and “The Garden” by Steven Gardner
Architectural terra cotta, glazes, and cast glass; 9’ tall by 4’ wide.
These sculptures are based on a series of three allegories of learning. They draw from regional stories and imagery as well as traditional mythology and symbolism. The center image of “El Abrecaminos” is based upon a concept taken from a group of stories written by young writers from the Yakima Valley: “Abre means to open and camino means the way. An Abrecaminos is one who opens the way, one who makes way where there is no way” (from Seeking Light in Each Dark Room, an Anthology of Young Latino Voices). This idea relates to the many immigrants who have come to the Yakima Valley to open a way for themselves and their children, but more importantly relates to all the students at YVCC who are opening a pathway to their future.

Greetings from the 2017 PROGRAM CHAIR

Welcome to Portland, site of the 68th Annual Convention of the Conference on College Composition and Communication. It is such a privilege and pleasure not only to welcome you to my home region, the Pacific Northwest, but to have the opportunity to engage with you as a conference, coming together in conversation and work to cultivate ourselves and our capacity for action.

The print program cover art—Steve Gardner’s Three Allegories of Learning, an installation of three panels which hang in Glenn Anthon Hall, where I teach—captures this year’s convention theme, “Cultivating Capacity, Creating Change.” Each piece—“The Garden,” “El Abrecaminos” (one who opens the way), and “The Torch”—symbolizes the actions necessary to develop current and future generations of teachers, scholars, and advocates. As we convene for the CCCC 2017, I hope that we can use this time to nurture and enrich, resist and persist, imagine and strive, in ways that will sustain us, as professionals and as an organization.

The convention program offers abundant opportunities to do just that. More than 1,900 proposals, reflecting the breadth of our field, were peer reviewed to create this year’s program. In addition to preconvention workshops on Wednesday—and a 2017 innovation: free postconvention workshops on Saturday afternoon—attendees will have over 50 concurrent sessions, roundtables, and peer-reviewed poster sessions from which to select in every session time slot. Needless to say, the hardest part of negotiating CCCC 2017 for many of you will be choosing between so many interesting, high-quality sessions.

This year’s program features two new types of highly interactive, facilitated sessions: Think Tanks and Cultivate Sessions. These sessions, designed to be collaborative, working exchanges, provide a space on the program for members to work on shared interests and concerns in an informal, democratic way. Several of these new sessions are showcased in each session time block throughout the convention, providing attendees an opportunity to engage as a conference and enact the convention theme of cultivation.

Additionally, the 2017 program retains other traditional and more recent program components, including an Action Hub, a large open space in the Pre-Function E area near the Exhibit Hall, where attendees can participate in organized activities, peruse various informational displays, or simply meet at open tables to talk and work together. Conventiongoers also have the opportunity to “Cs the Day,” attend Special Interest Group (SIG) and Caucus meetings, engage with the Computer Connection and Digital Pedagogy Posters, play in the Gaming Lounge, visit the Exhibit Hall, celebrate colleagues’ achievements at the Awards Recognition Reception, and much more!

CCCC Chair Linda Adler-Kassner will kick off the Opening General Session with a talk that builds on her 2016 convention theme, “Writing Strategies for Action.” In it, she will discuss the challenges and opportunities inherent in working as writing professionals in the age of the “Educational Intelligence Complex” and how our disciplinary identity provides a foundation to navigate and perhaps change the conditions that contribute to these challenges.

Special Saturday programming has been designed to keep the convention momentum going right up until the end. After the Annual Business Meeting, Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist, Define American CEO, and media start-up #EmergingUS founder Jose Antonio Vargas will offer a keynote address related to his work advocating for immigration reform. Vargas’s work embodies “cultivating capacity, creating change” through writing and digital media.

Saturday also includes a half-day of concurrent sessions and “cultivate” programming. Sessions related to teaching in the two-year college, high school and college connections, and library partnerships will be featured in an effort to bring CCCC to a broader audience, including area high school teachers and adjunct and contingent faculty. Immediately following Saturday’s sessions, free postconference workshops on a range of teaching and writing program-related topics will be offered.

Few spaces are more generative and regenerative than a conference. However, in this challenging, even hostile, social and political climate, our time together is more important than ever. Let us use our time in Portland not only to learn together and enjoy some camaraderie, but also to build our capacity, individually and collectively, to address the issues we face and to create conditions for change, in higher education and beyond.

It takes a village . . .
The 2017 CCCC Convention would not have been possible without the generous support I have received from so many smart, helpful colleagues. First and foremost, planning a convention cannot happen at all without the assistance of the talented, hardworking NCTE staff: Emily Kirkpatrick, Emily Nafziger, Marlene Knight, Julie May, Kristen Suchor, and many others. I am also fortunate to work with supportive colleagues at Yakima Valley College, especially Dodie Forrest, who was instrumental in every step of the proposal process, from CFP to scheduling. I am grateful to the many previous CCCC chairs who, through the years, provided models of effective convention planning and strong leadership. I am particularly indebted to Linda Adler-Kassner, who generously provided materials, counsel, feedback, and encouragement throughout my convention planning work; and to Joyce Locke Carter, whose “risk and reward” program transformed for me—and CCCC—the notion of what a convention can be. I also greatly appreciate my fellow CCCC Officers and the CCCC Executive Committee for their service and commitment to the convention and the organization. Special thanks go to the Local Arrangements Committee, led by Hildy Miller and Chris Nelson. They and their team of volunteers have worked hard to welcome you to Portland and make your convention experience a smooth and enjoyable one. Finally, my sincere gratitude to the many CCCC members who assisted with proposal coaching and Stage I and Stage II review, and to the large number of proposers who responded to the CFP. It is YOU who are responsible for such an outstanding program.
As co-chair of the 2017 CCCC Convention’s Local Arrangements Committee, I’m delighted to welcome you to scenic Portland, a dynamic city best known as a center for progressive values, environmental awareness, coffee consumption, bike-friendliness, and, increasingly, as a hub for comics studies. And, of course, for its rain. In March the weather is unpredictable, but you can expect temperatures in the 50s with intermittent light rain. So be sure to bring a light parka with a hood so that you can do as Portlanders do: we rarely bother with umbrellas but instead simply pull up our hoods.

Our 2017 CCCC Convention Hospitality Guide found on the conference website will provide the information you need for transportation and lodging, restaurants and bars, shopping and outdoor activities, and cultural events. We are especially proud of the Accessibility Guide, designed to make your stay as comfortable and convenient as possible. And we encourage you to stop by our table at the conference, where you’ll find volunteers to help with questions about hospitality and accessibility, along with information on registration, overseen by Local Arrangements Committee co-chair Chris Nelson.

The conference will be held right in the center of the city. You’ll find a walkable, European-style downtown filled with restaurants and food pods, arts and cultural venues, bookstores, bars, and coffeehouses. West of it is the surrounding beauty of the West Hills, where on a clear day you can see a panoramic view of the valley below, and, perhaps, catch a glimpse of majestic Mt. Hood, a ghostly presence looming over the city. On its other side is the Willamette River with Waterfront Park, a community green space with much to see and do year-round. And a short light-rail ride away is the Oregon Convention Center district with literally scores of restaurants, bars, and coffeehouses within a walkable half-mile. To get around, simply take the MAX light rail or rent a bicycle through Biketown from one of the innumerable orange bike stands.

Let me share a few highlights of the area.

Downtown and Oregon Convention Center District: Be sure to visit Pioneer Courthouse Square, known as Portland’s living room, where you might find anything from an impromptu artistic performance to a political demonstration. Enjoy the many restaurants and bars, while foodies must check out the Alder Street Food Pods. Coffee connoisseurs should seek out Stumptown Coffee Bistro in the hip Ace Hotel, and a Saturday trek down the tree-filled Park Blocks will take you to the Portland Farmers Market on the Portland State University campus. Also on the Park Blocks you’ll find the Portland Art Museum and the Oregon History Museum, with the Arlene Schnitzer Concert Hall just a block away. For nightlife, you might visit McMenamins Crystal Ballroom, a restored vintage venue with a “floating dance floor,” where Jimi Hendrix once performed; Wilfs near the restored Union Station for jazz and an old-world sophisticated ambience; and over in the Convention Center District, the Doug Fir Lounge for indie bands. Literati must go to Powell’s City of Books, an independent bookstore so large that you are issued a color-coded map to guide you through it, and to a small bookstore just outside the Convention Center District called Mother Foucault’s Bookshop, whose name speaks for itself. Sports lovers may want to attend a Portland Timbers soccer game at Providence Park or a Portland Trailblazers basketball game at the Moda Center. And shoppers should take advantage of Oregon’s tax-free shopping to buy shoes at Keen and Nike.

West Hills: In the West Hills overlooking downtown, you’ll find forests, parks, and gardens and see why the Pacific Coast of Oregon is said to be the greenest place west of Ireland. Hike or bike in Forest Park, a dense forest of trails where pale little trilliums may be blooming. Washington Park has its Portland Rose Garden with over 10,000 roses, and the Portland Japanese Garden, in authentic Japanese style, speaks to our identity as a Pacific Rim city. (See also the Lan Su Chinese Garden, in the Ming Dynasty style, in the downtown Chinatown district.) And, finally, Council Crest Park gives you viewing from Portland’s highest point. On a clear day, you can see Mt. Hood, Mt. St. Helens, Mt. Adams, Mt. Jefferson, and Mt. McKinley from there.

Waterfront Park/Willamette River: Just east of downtown, you’ll find Waterfront Park, once a freeway until environmentalist governor Tom McCall pulled it up and turned it into a park that runs the length of downtown. There you can enjoy the walk and view the March cherry blossoms, visit restaurants, browse around the Saturday Market (which also runs on Sunday), book a cruise on the Portland Spirit riverboat, join a walking tour, or explore the infamous Shanghai Tunnels, where men were abducted and sent to sea. And most of all, you can people watch. If you’re lucky, you may hear the haunting strains of our flaming-bagpipe-playing unicyclist in his Darth Vader disguise.

Portlandia/Keep Portland Weird:
Portlandia fans must visit the feminist bookstore In Other Words in Northeast Portland, the site of so many skits in the series. Help keep Portland weird by lining up at Voodoo Donuts in the Convention Center District and sipping coffee at Rimsky-Korsakoffee House just outside the district, with its bizarre rotating tables. And follow Waterfront Park to a median strip where you’ll see Mill Ends Park, the world’s tiniest park, only two feet in diameter, designated back in 1948 as the only colony for leprechauns west of Ireland.

Special Events: On Friday, March 17, St. Patrick’s Day, celebrate at Kells Irish Restaurant and Pub with Irish music and dancing. On Saturday, March 18, join the Jim Berlin Pub Crawl through some of downtown Portland’s best.

On behalf of Local Arrangements Committee co-chair Chris Nelson and myself, our institutions—Oregon State University and Portland State University—and our many dedicated volunteers, we look forward to your visit.

First Time at the Convention?

With pleasure, the CCCC Newcomers’ Orientation Committee welcomes all of you to the 2017 CCCC Annual Convention, but especially new members and first-time attendees. We have planned several events that we hope will help you get the most out of this conference. (These events and their locations are listed in the Special Events schedules in the program.)

On Wednesday, our committee will host an Orientation Session (5:15–6:15 p.m.), where we will discuss how to navigate the conference, how to use the program effectively, how to participate in the conference’s many events, and how to meet others. We also look forward to meeting you at the Newcomers’ Coffee Hour on Thursday (7:30–8:15 a.m.), a congenial start to the first full day of activities, where you can begin the kinds of professional conversations that have made this conference one of the high points of the year for each of us.

We also hope that you will attend the Think Tank (session K.05, Friday, 3:30–4:45 p.m.) for proposing presentations and panels for the 2018 CCCC Convention. At this session, you will have the opportunity to brainstorm initial ideas regarding papers and sessions, meet with other newcomers interested in similar topics, and also meet with established scholars in our field with expertise in the various program clusters in rhetoric, composition, and communication studies. These scholars will serve as facilitators, helping you conceptualize and frame your proposals.

This year, we are also hosting a session called “Career Quest: Navigating a Future in Composition, Rhetoric, and Writing Studies” (session A.01, Thursday, 10:30–11:45 a.m.). This interactive Cultivate session is designed for newcomers and early career attendees; its goal is to help participants develop a plan in which opportunities at the conference and within the organization can play an important part in their career development.

Throughout the conference, the Newcomers’ Orientation Committee members will wear specially marked badges. Please say hello; we are happy to listen to your concerns or answer any questions you have. And feel free to stop by the Newcomers Station, where members of our committee and other CCCC members will be available to chat about the conference, talk about shared interests, learn about your work, and discuss how CCCC can support you.

With warm good wishes,

CCCC Newcomers’ Orientation Committee

Session and Event Locations
Unless otherwise noted, all sessions and events at the 2017 CCCC Annual Convention are located in the Oregon Convention Center.

Information for Attendees with Disabilities
CCCC is committed to making arrangements that allow all of its members to participate in the convention. Wheelchair space is available in meeting rooms, and we have provided all speakers and session chairs with guidelines that will make sessions more accessible to all convention participants. These arrangements result from conversations between the NCTE staff, the CCCC Program Chair, the CCCC Committee on Disability Issues in Composition and Communication, disability studies specialists at the University of Illinois, and other professional associations. Please download the Accessibility Guide from the CCCC 2017 website or Mobile App. Information is also available at the Accessibilities Table, located in the Ginkoberry Concourse, Level One, of the Oregon Convention Center.

Lactation Room
The Lactation Room is located in the Oregon Convention Center Administration offices, Level Two. Ask for the Nursing Mothers Room.

Hours:
- Wednesday through Friday: 7:00 a.m.–9:00 p.m.
- Saturday: 7:00 a.m.–6:00 p.m.
Quiet Room
The Quiet Room is located in the Oregon Convention Center, Level One, room C127. Hours:

Family Room and Gaming Lounge
The Family Room and Gaming Lounge is located in the Oregon Convention Center, Level One, room D129. Hours:
- Wednesday through Friday: 7:00 a.m.–9:00 p.m.
- Saturday: 7:00 a.m.–6:00 p.m.

Nonsexist Language
All CCCC 2017 program participants were sent and asked to use the official CCCC position statement and guidelines for nonsexist language at their sessions.

Exhibits
The Exhibit Hall is located in the Oregon Convention Center, Exhibit Hall E, on Level One. The hours for the Exhibit Hall are:
- Thursday: 10:00 a.m.–6:00 p.m.
- Friday: 9:00 a.m.–5:00 p.m.
- Saturday: 10:00 a.m.–1:00 p.m.

Planning for Next Year’s CCCC Convention
Individuals interested in discussing program proposals for the 2018 CCCC Annual Convention in Kansas City, MO, March 14–17, are invited to meet Asao Inoue, 2018 Program Chair, in the Action Hub on Friday, March 17, 2:00–3:00 p.m.

Wi-Fi
The Oregon Convention Center offers free public Wi-Fi in all common areas and eateries. Wi-Fi in session rooms will also be available to all attendees. The network ID is CCCC 2017, and there is no password.

CCCCC Mobile App
For the most up-to-date information on session locations and times, download the mobile app. The app provides a quick way to search convention sessions, view maps of the Oregon Convention Center, explore the Exhibit Hall, and more. Search for “NCTE Events” at the Google Play Store or Apple Store.
AA and Al-Anon Meetings

CCCC offers meeting space for AA and Al-Anon meetings on Thursday and Friday evenings from 8:00 to 10:00 p.m.

- AA: Room D133
- Al-Anon: Room D134

Mutual Respect & Anti-Harassment Policy

NCTE is committed to producing events where everyone may learn, network, and socialize in an environment of mutual respect. Therefore, some behaviors are expressly prohibited: harassment or intimidation related to gender, gender identity and/or expression, sexual orientation, disability, race, age, religion; deliberate intimidation, stalking, or following; harassing photography or recording; sustained disruption of talks or events; inappropriate contact and unwelcome sexual attention. Participants are expected to observe this code of conduct policy in all venues and events. Contact an NCTE staff member onsite to intervene if you believe you have been harassed or that a harassing situation exists. All reports will be directed to NCTE leadership immediately. Legal counsel, venue security, and/or local law enforcement may become involved if deemed necessary.
Special Features of CCCC 2017

Cultivate Programming

Use your time at the Convention to “cultivate capacity” and “create change”! Participate in one (or more!) of the CCCC 2017 Featured Sessions. Cultivate Sessions and Think Tanks are new types of highly interactive sessions that draw upon member interests and expertise. These facilitated sessions are designed to build member capacity in particular ways and to provide space during the convention for members to work together on various professional and organizational issues.

A Sessions
Think Tank on Supporting Queer Scholars
Think Tank on Research Methods
Cultivating Career Paths for Future and Early Career Professionals

B Sessions
Cultivating Feminist Capacity for Action
Cultivating Scholarship/Publication
Cultivating Ourselves throughout Our Careers

C Sessions

Cultivating Composition Pedagogy

Action Hub
Pre-Function E

The Action Hub is a site that invites members to engage as a conference in an informal and interactive setting. This year’s Action Hub includes many opportunities to “cultivate capacity” and “create change,” personally, professionally, and organizationally.

Action Hub stations include (but are not limited to) the following:

Cs the Day
Cs the Day is a game that promotes a lively, fun, and eccentric approach to 4Cs. By completing quests to earn the fabled Sparklepony, rhet/comp trading cards, and other prizes, we hope you will gain a new appreciation for how games and play can lead to real exploration, learning, and engagement. Play the game; win the conference!
Writing for Change
In conjunction with 4Cs for Equality (4C4E), Writing for Change invites organizations and individuals to share their efforts to use their writing for positive change in their local communities, programs, classrooms, and the global community. Learn how to generate conversation with local, state, and federal policymakers via face-to-face contact and written communication.

Digital Archive of Literacy Narratives (DALN)
The DALN—the largest publicly accessible, online archive of first-hand literacy accounts in the world—will be onsite to collect stories about participants’ literacy backgrounds. Please consider contributing to this valuable teaching, research, and archival resource.

Writing Studies Tree
The WST, writingstudiestree.org, is a crowdsourced database of academic genealogies in writing studies: links of mentoring, collaboration, education, and employment among people and places in the field. We hope you will come explore your connections and contribute to the WST’s ongoing efforts to map the field as a living network.

National Census of Writing
The National Census of Writing seeks to provide a data-based landscape of writing instruction at two- and four-year public and not-for-profit institutions of higher education in the United States. Please stop by to learn more about NCW and to help us collect feedback in preparation for the next round of data collection that will begin June 2017.

Discover CCCC
CCCC, a conference under the NCTE umbrella, is the largest professional organization for researching and teaching composition, from writing to new media, yet its complex organizational structure and diverse range of member interests can make it difficult to understand and navigate. Learn more about what CCCC is, what it does, and how to get involved (beyond attending the convention). Members of the CCCC Executive Committee will be on hand throughout the day on Thursday and Friday to answer your questions, listen to your concerns, and provide more information about various aspects of the organization, from its mission, vision, and values and governance structure to its current initiatives and member resources and opportunities.

Meet the SIGs
Special Interest Groups (SIGs), Standing Groups, and Caucuses are valuable sites in the organization for mentorship, collegiality, and engagement around shared interests. Learn more about what groups exist and how to get involved by visiting their display of fliers in the Action Hub. Representatives from many SIGs will be on hand throughout the day on Thursday and Friday to greet attendees and answer questions. See the schedule on the SIG display board for when to meet members of a particular SIG or just stop by and learn what SIGs are and what they do.
NCTE/CCCC Policy Advocacy
Learn what is happening with higher education policy in your state and across the nation and what advocacy work NCTE is engaged in. Peruse the Action Hub display boards to find reports from your state’s NCTE Higher Education Policy Analysts as well as recent NCTE and CCCC position statements. Members engaged in policy advocacy will be on hand periodically throughout the convention to answer questions and discuss policies and policy work of member interest and concern.

Everyday Advocacy Workshops
A Session (Thursday, March 16, 10:30 a.m.–11:45 a.m.)
I Session (Friday, March 17, 12:30 p.m.–1:45 p.m.)
Cathy Fleischer, Everyday Advocacy founder and NCTE/CCCC member, will be available to introduce members to the Everyday Advocacy website and its resources and to discuss “smart, safe, and savvy” approaches to leverage our expertise to create change in our local settings and to enter into the larger public conversations around literacy education.

Check out the signage in the Action Hub for the times and specific scheduled activities for the following:
- Cultivate!: The Cultivate! space will include a range of structured and informal mentoring and professional development activities.
- Celebrate!: Hear various CCCC award winners discuss their work and congratulate them on their accomplishments.
- Meet your Labor Liaisons: Co-Labor Liaisons, Holly Hassel and Keith Rhodes, are seeking feedback on members’ needs as they intersect with labor issues in the profession. They are gathering ideas and resources that enable CCCC to respond to member needs.
- CCCC Summer Conferences: Learn more about CCCC’s inaugural summer conference series. Conference hosts from the various summer conference sites will be on hand periodically to answer questions.
- And more!

Additional Activities

Digital Praxis Posters
Ginkoberry Concourse
Digital Praxis Posters is an interactive exhibit format. Information about current posters and this year’s schedule of presentations is available on the CCCC 2017 website. Digital posters will be presented during sessions B, C, F, and G.

Carrie Wastal, University of California, San Diego

The Research Network Forum, founded in 1987, is a preconvention forum which provides an opportunity for established researchers, new researchers, and graduate students to discuss their current projects and receive mentoring from colleagues in the discipline. The forum is free to CCCC Convention registrants. As in past years, RNF 2017 features morning plenary addresses focusing on the 2017 CCCC Convention theme. During roundtable discussions, Work-in-Progress Presenters (WiPPs) at any stage of research and at any position in the composition/rhetoric field (graduate student, junior faculty, tenured faculty, administrator, and/or independent scholar) are grouped by thematic clusters where they discuss their current projects. Discussion Leaders (DLS) lead the thematic roundtables and mentor WiPPs; this role is key to the RNF. Participants also include editors of printed and online composition/rhetoric publications (journals, edited collections, and book series), who discuss publishing opportunities for completed works-in-progress in an open, roundtable format.

Consortium of Doctoral Programs in Rhetoric and Composition
D131
1:30 p.m.–5:00 p.m.

The Consortium of Doctoral Programs in Rhetoric and Composition (CDPRC), which represents more than 70 universities, meets every year in conjunction with CCCC. The CDPRC links doctoral education with the discipline, with members from the MA and undergraduate SIGS, and with local and national issues. In 2017, the CDPRC will offer a two-part forum that begins with a featured discussion topic and concludes with a business meeting, both of which are open events. This year’s topic is a panel presentation focused on best practices for preparing doctoral candidates for multiple, flexible career paths in the academy and beyond, including two-year college teaching, assuming administrative responsibilities, serving diverse student populations, and training for nonacademic positions. After a series of short presentations from doctoral program faculty and student representatives, the interactive dialogue will focus on the possibilities and constraints of preparing graduates for such future roles and responsibilities. The business meeting agenda includes reports from Consortium officers, election of new officers, planning for the 2018 meeting, and developing initiatives for maintaining connections with stakeholder groups. Graduate students are encouraged to attend both parts of the forum.

Poet-to-Poet Event
C125
1:30 p.m.–5:00 p.m.
Chair: Katherine Oldmixon, Huston-Tillotson University, Austin, TX
Facilitator: Jennine Krueger, Huston-Tillotson University, Austin, TX

Join the Wednesday Poet-to-Poet event. Bring 10 copies of one or two pages of original poetry in progress for insightful and constructive feedback. This workshop is not limited to readers at the Friday Exultation of Larks. There is no fee for the event. We particularly welcome CCCC member poets who are novices.

Qualitative Research Network
E142 & E143
1:30 p.m.–5:00 p.m.
Co-Chairs: William Banks, East Carolina University
Kevin Roozen, University of Central Florida

The Qualitative Research Network, which meets annually at the CCCC Convention, is offered for new and experienced qualitative researchers. The QRN provides mentoring and support to qualitative researchers at all levels of experience and working in diverse areas of study within the college composition and communication community. As a preconference research network, the QRN is open to everyone, including those who are already presenting at the conference in other venues.
More than twenty years ago, Andrea Lunsford and Susan West (1996) asserted that “the time has passed when teachers of composition and communication could ignore debates about intellectual property, if indeed we ever should have” (“Intellectual Property and Composition Studies.” CCC 47.3, p. 383). From remix, YouTube take-down notices, and the chilling of free speech to international free trade agreements, net neutrality, and open-access publishing, the high-stakes intellectual property issues for our field seem to be ever proliferating. This year we encourage teachers, researchers, students, editors, publishers, and writing program administrators concerned with the ownership and authorship of intellectual property to participate in the annual meeting of the Caucus on Intellectual Property and Composition and Communication Studies (CCCC-IP).

As the public and open counterpart of the CCCC Committee on Intellectual Property, the CCCC-IP has a 20-year tradition of pragmatic and action-oriented meetings. Caucus participants create action plans; develop lobbying strategies; mentor junior scholars and graduate students; and produce documents for political, professional, and pedagogical use. This year attendees will contribute to roundtables designed to respond to four areas of timely concern: (1) emergent legislative and legal developments; (2) IP advocacy and outreach issues from an international perspective; (3) best practices regarding pedagogical approaches; and (4) state of the research approaches and findings related to IP in writing studies. Following the roundtable workshops, participants reconvene to share their plans and recommendations for future action.

The Coalition of Feminist Scholars Board Meeting (Coalition of Feminist Scholars in the History of Rhetoric & Composition)

B117
4:00 p.m.–6:00 p.m.

#TYCACreatingChange

D138
5:15 p.m.–6:15 p.m.

Formerly known as TYCA Talks, #TYCACreatingChange is a place to find your tribe and connect with colleagues who teach at two-year colleges. At #TYCACreatingChange, we will share news of emerging local, regional, and national issues, celebrate our students, and use our collective voice to advocate for our open-door institutions.
International Researchers Consortium Business Meeting
A105
5:15 p.m.–6:15 p.m.

Co-Chairs: Christiane K. Donahue, Dartmouth College and Université de Lille
Cinthia Gannett, Fairfield University, CT

Annual business meeting; all are welcome.

Newcomers’ Orientation
Portland Ballroom 251
5:15 p.m.–6:15 p.m.

Join members of the Newcomers’ Orientation Committee for an orientation session. The committee will discuss how to navigate the convention and share tips to get the most out of convention activities.

Rhetoricians for Peace Special Event: 2016 Election
Rhetoric and Pedagogies for Political Literacy
B115
6:00 p.m.–10:00 p.m.

Rhetoricians for Peace has held workshops and special events at CCCC Conventions since 2002. The group is committed to examining ways language is used to incite violence, to oppress and marginalize, and to suppress civil and human rights around the globe. For the 2017 Special Event we begin with several 5–8-minute roundtable presentations designed to facilitate critical discussion about rhetoric in the public sphere surrounding the 2016 election year and to promote pedagogies for developing political literacy in our composition/rhetoric classrooms.

In particular, we will examine the ways in which thousands of radio and television hours have been devoted to scapegoating the marginalized and demonizing the vulnerable; how previously coded appeals to xenophobia, racism, and misogyny have been unleashed and erupted on the surface; how facts are optional and lies routine; how expedience is prioritized above integrity and ignorance embraced to stoke people’s insecurities, resentment, and outrage to bring us “the Donald.” Damage to the country and civil discourse has been done and may be irreversible. We wish to look toward rhetorical possibilities for finding common ground, promoting civil exchange, enhancing diversity, and creating peaceable options for addressing disagreements.
Articulation and Transfer SIG, WSIG.01
C126
6:30 p.m.–7:30 p.m.
An open discussion of transfer policies across institutions with special focus on how those policies relate to first-year composition.

TYCA 2017 Public Image of Two-Year Colleges:
TYCA Fame Award
C125
6:30 p.m.–7:30 p.m.
The TYCA Fame Award serves to publicly acknowledge the best positive mention of the two-year college appearing in any media during the previous year. The award gives credit to those reporters, writers, filmmakers, and others who seek out and publicize exemplary students, faculty, programs, campuses, and/or recognize the two-year college system.

Building Sustainable, Capable Lives, or Tilting at Windmills? An Evening of Action and Mentoring Hosted by the Coalition of Feminist Scholars in the History of Rhetoric & Composition, WSIG.02
Portland Ballroom 252
6:30 p.m.–8:30 p.m.
The Coalition will offer a presentation and activities as well as mentoring tables addressing the issue of work/life balance.

MW.03 Community Writing Mentoring Workshop

This workshop responds to the desires expressed by the hundreds of attendees at the first Conference on Community Writing (CCW) in October of 2015 for a hands-on opportunity for teachers, scholars, and community organizers to dialogue with and receive mentorship and feedback from senior scholars in community-based writing, which includes genres such as service-learning, community-based research, community literacy, ethnography, community publishing, advocacy, and activist writing. It also provides an opportunity to circulate and apply the best practices outlined in the revised CCCC Statement on Community-Engaged Projects in Rhetoric and Composition. The CCW hopes to establish a national mentoring network of teachers and scholars via this workshop.

Scholars for the Dream Travel Award Committee
Chair: April Baker-Bell, Michigan State University, East Lansing
Genevieve Garcia de Mueller, University of Texas Rio Grande Valley
Alexandra Hidalgo, Michigan State University, East Lansing
Iris Ruiz, University of California, Merced
Robyn Tasaka, University of Hawai‘i-West O‘ahu

To increase the participation of traditionally underrepresented groups—African Americans, Asian Americans, Mexican Americans, Puerto Ricans and other Latino and Latina Americans, and American Indians—CCCC has established the Scholars for the Dream Travel Awards. The awards celebrate the scholarly contributions of first-time presenters at CCCC who are members of these groups. By providing some funding for these scholars to travel to the conference and to share their work with us, we hope to make the term “underrepresented” past history.
Chairs’ Memorial Scholarship—2017 Recipients
Sara P. Alvarez, University of Louisville, KY
Janine Butler, East Carolina University, Greenville, NC
Megan Faver Hartline, University of Louisville, KY
Brittany S. Hull, Indiana University of Pennsylvania

Chairs’ Memorial Scholarship Award Committee
Chair: Beverly Moss, The Ohio State University, Columbus
John Duffy, University of Notre Dame, IN
Malea Powell, Michigan State University, East Lansing
Stephanie Vie, University of Central Florida, Orlando
Victor Villanueva, Washington State University, Pullman

To remember and honor the Chairs of CCCC who have passed away, the CCCC Executive Committee has created scholarships of $750 each to help cover the costs of four graduate students who are presenting at the annual conference. Full-time graduate students whose presentations were selected through the regular peer review process are eligible for these scholarships.

Presentation of the Exemplar Award
This award is presented to a person who has served or serves as an exemplar of our organization, representing the highest ideals of scholarship, teaching, and service to the entire profession.

Deborah Brandt, recipient of the 2017 CCCC Exemplar Award, will speak.

Exemplar Award Committee
Chair: Shirley Rose, Arizona State University, Tempe
Arnetha Ball, Stanford University, CA
Kay Halasek, The Ohio State University, Columbus
Jaime Armin Mejia, Texas State University, San Marcos
Tony Scott, Syracuse University, NY

For a listing of previous Exemplar Award winners, please visit http://www.ncte.org/cccc/awards/exemplar.
Deborah L. Brandt exemplifies the standards that we expect for recipients of the CCCC Exemplar Award. Since the 1980s, Deborah Brandt’s scholarship has not only been of the highest quality but has fully embodied the values of the CCCC with a commitment to students, a responsiveness to the social complexity of their lives, and an engagement in providing supports for literacy learning that would advance them as individuals and society as a whole. She has consistently produced work that has been at the forefront of enhancing our view of what constitutes literacy and advancing our understanding of its complex interconnections to social, cultural, and political life.

Now Professor Emerita of English at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, Deborah Brandt is the author of four widely cited books, including her first book, Literacy as Involvement: The Acts of Writers, Readers, and Texts (1990), for which she was awarded the David H. Russell Award for Distinguished Research. Her second book, Literacy in American Lives (2001), earned the Grawemeyer Award in Education, the CCCC Outstanding Book Award, and the MLA Mina P. Shaughnessy Prize. Her most recent book, The Rise of Writing: Redefining Mass Literacy (2015), completed with the support of a Guggenheim Fellowship, received the 2017 Mina Shaughnessy Prize. In honor and support of this work, Dr. Brandt has held fellowships from the Guggenheim Foundation, the American Council of Learned Societies, and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Over the last 30 years, as our field has witnessed great shifts in how those who come from diverse contexts are represented, Brandt has been at the heart of this important change. Her concept of “sponsors of literacy,” the ways that literacy is supported by powerful material and personal connections, is a threshold concept in our field. Her influence has extended well beyond the borders of our field, as her work has been cited in education and policy studies, print culture and the history of the book, applied linguistics, anthropology, the sociology of education, and information studies. Indeed, her impact has extended beyond the borders of our nation as her work has been highly influential in applied linguistics in Europe, which resulted in an Honorary Doctorate from Umea University in Sweden. Those who know her know that she accomplished such recognition without a hint of self-promotion or self-aggrandizement.

By looking carefully at what readers and writers actually do, Literacy as Involvement offered a clear challenge to the “great divide” view of literacy still dominant in the 1990s. Literacy in American Lives grew out of this earlier theorizing and research, adding methodologically sound and innovative investigation that gave clarity to an issue that was at best hazily understood: how literacy experiences grow out of the conditions of one’s life and life opportunities—and how those were in turn shaped by larger historical, social, and economic forces. It changed and refocused our thinking through writing that is elegant and persuasive, deeply grounded in the empirical materials she carefully aggregated. The 2015 follow-up The Rise of Writing reveals how changing technological, historical, and economic forces have added to the pervasiveness of writing and provided new configurations of writing activity and motives, indicating how deeply writing has entered into the identities of people throughout the workplace and social life and providing an increased warrant and a direction to ourselves and others for why we do what we do as teachers of writing.

As a teacher, Deborah Brandt has built a distinctive record of cultivating young scholars who have gone on to make significant contributions to scholarship, teaching, and service. At the University of Wisconsin-Madison, where she was instrumental in building the composition and rhetoric graduate program, she has had a reputation for fairness and equity and for being both attentive and accountable to matters related to diversity and social justice. She has been a critical factor in the preparation of graduate students of color, having mentored them as they charted career paths in our areas—with several competing successfully for the CCCC Scholars for the Dream Award.

A letter written by her former students describes her as “both demanding and generous. She could often find the one small sparkling gem of brilliance in an otherwise twisted argument, giving new life to a struggling research trajectory. She shared her sense of wonder at literacy with her students, exploring our research sites vicariously through us, pushing us to sharpen our insights, make them speak to larger theoretical concerns, at the same time as holding us accountable to the real lives, and real challenges, of those whom we studied.”

Brandt’s contribution to the field is also evident in the role she has played in calling attention to the work of others. She has served on the editorial boards of all the major journals in our field, on the editorial board of a book series, and on a variety of selection committees. As coeditor of Written Communication for nearly a decade, she has played a critical role in bringing to the attention of the profession some of our most innovative research and scholarship and thereby ensuring the scholarly foundations of our profession.
Thursday, 8:30–10:00 a.m.

Her service to the discipline is wide ranging, from national lobbying for writing studies and national service crossing composition and rhetoric organizations and publications, to campus and community service that has made significant interventions and left a lasting impact. As a member of the Steering Committee for the United States Department of Education’s National Center for English Learning and Achievement, she was a powerful informant and fierce advocate for writing studies among policymakers and various English Studies professionals.

Her service to our profession also reaches deeply and meaningfully into Madison, Wisconsin, the community where she worked and lived for nearly 30 years. At the University of Wisconsin-Madison, she worked for decades in support of important and varied initiatives for diversity, equity, and social justice across the campus. In the University of Wisconsin Hmong Literacy, Language, and Jobs Project, she led a group of her graduate students in providing one-on-one writing instruction and tutoring to members of Madison’s Hmong community who were seeking or sustaining employment. She served on the City of Madison Affirmative Action Commission and the Education Committee of the Madison Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, demonstrating that she does not simply talk about social justice, equity, and access; she consistently does the work regardless of whether or not anyone is looking.

The duration and excellence of Deborah Brandt’s contributions to the scholarship, teaching, and service that sustain CCCC and the profession it represents have earned her selection as the 2017 CCCC Exemplar.

Because Writing Is Never Just Writing

For CCCC 2016, I invited everyone in attendance to be part of telling a story: about our foundational values and principles, about how we act on them (and how we might like to act on them differently), about how we might build alliances with others from them. I suggested that telling this story, based on our values and principles, would be important as we shape conditions for writing and writers to flourish.

In this talk, I’ll build on the foundation that we started to lay together at CCCC 2016, considering some of the issues that we face. But my call here will be a bit more urgent, focusing not just on how we might develop strategies to tell and change stories, but why we must. This call will be located around the talk’s central theme: writing is never just writing.

Consider a concern that writing teachers, tutors, administrators, and students often hear: “My students can’t write.” This is often followed by a lament about what the speaker perceives to be students’ inability to produce a representation of their knowledge that, from the perspective of the speaker, is straightforward and “obvious.” The statement and the perspective reflect a belief that writing is one thing, it is “just writing.”

As writing professionals— instructors, consultants, tutors, students, administrators—we know that writing is so much more. It’s a strategy that can be used for learning, a way of negotiating identities within and around specific contexts, a representation of ideas, a way of participating in ideologies, a strategy for movement, a way of understanding. We build on these understandings of writing as we work with writers every day in classrooms, writing centers, community sites. We build on them as we work with faculty colleagues—even (especially) those who complain that students “can’t write”—to use writing as a strategy for learning and exploration. All of these uses of writing make the point: writing is never just writing.

But as we work with students and colleagues, in classrooms and communities, at the local level, we also live in a broader climate that is shaped by the Educational Intelligence Complex (or EIC), a loosely aligned group of NGOs, funders, policies. The EIC is motivated by a story about The Problem with American Education and How to Fix It. The problem, as they tell it, is teachers, curricula, and the educational system; the consequence of the problem is the potential downfall of the American economy; the fix comes from practices imported from businesses and industries that may suffer if The Problem continues.

The EIC’s initiatives are many. They are well funded, well promoted, and embraced by those who speak with loud voices. They are reflected in commonly used terminology: continuous improvement. Learning outcomes. Comparative data. They are captured in so-called “disruptions”: MOOCs, reductive competency-based programs, self-paced learning. They are embodied in some data-motivated efforts: predictive analytics, data mining, data dashboards. Through the story told by the EIC, these initiatives can have serious consequences for the things that we care about most: writers, writing, the ways in which we know that writing is never just writing. But: there also might be potential there.

Our challenge, then, is to work from the idea that writing is never just writing within the age of the EIC—and maybe even to reshape its story. We can do so by working from our disciplinary identity, one that exists at the intersection of focus, expert knowledge, and a particular kind of responsibility.

These are the issues I’ll consider in this talk: how working through the idea that writing is never just writing, an idea that embodies our disciplinary identity, can help us to navigate through the EIC and its story about learning. To take up these (complicated!) questions, I’ll use some of the EIC’s artifacts as illustrations, considering their implications for learning and for writers. I’ll then consider how taking systematic, strategic action through our disciplinary identity can make a difference.

Linda Adler-Kassner is Professor of Writing Studies and Interim Dean of Undergraduate Education at the University of California, Santa Barbara. She directed the UCSB Writing Program from 2010 to 2015; she then became associate dean of Undergraduate Education, a position to which she will return in July 2017. In this capacity, she works with faculty and students across UCSB’s campus on questions related to teaching, learning, and assessment.

Always focusing on study of and practice with writing, Adler-Kassner teaches courses on writing and civic engagement, writing and public policy, assessment of writing, and—of course—first-year writing. She also leads seminars for faculty members on making threshold concepts of their disciplines more explicit in teaching, and courses for students on navigating the university (often through threshold concepts). She was thrilled to receive the UCSB Distinguished Teaching Award in 2015.

Adler-Kassner is author, coauthor, or coeditor of nine books and many articles and book chapters. Her most recent book, coedited with Elizabeth Wardle and bringing together the work of twenty-nine colleagues in the field, is Naming What We Know:
Threshold Concepts in Writing Studies. Naming What We Know was honored by the Council of Writing Program Administrators for Outstanding Contribution to the Discipline. Adler-Kassner is also author of The Activist WPA: Changing Stories about Writing and Writers, which won the CWPA Best Book Award.

Cultivate and Think Tank Sessions

A.01 Career Quest: Navigating a Future in Composition, Rhetoric, and Writing Studies

This interactive Cultivate session is designed for newcomers and early career attendees. Its goal is to help participants develop a plan in which opportunities at the conference and within the organization can play an important part in their career development. Participants will engage in activities designed to clarify their career goals and will have the opportunity to hear brief presentations about a range of career options available to them. Afterward, participants will be invited to visit various stations, each representing a different career path, to learn more about the careers they envision in their professional futures.

At the end of the session, participants will design a plan for the 2017 conference, as well as a broader plan for engagement with future conferences and with what the organization offers.

Think Tank on Supporting Queer Scholars

A.02 Queering Our Spaces: Cultivating Institutional Support for Queer/LGBTQ+ Composition Scholars

This session focuses on cultivating institutional support for LGBTQIAP+ compositionists. This session’s goal is to work toward concrete plans to create or expand programmatic support for the queer faculty, undergraduate students, graduate students, and contingent lecturers at our institutions. During this session, discussion will center on the experiences of queer scholars, current forms of institutional support, and key gaps in institutional support. Participants will create an initial plan to strengthen support for queer scholars in their current teaching, research, and service contexts. To carry this work beyond the Cs’ Think Tank, participants will help establish digital spaces to continue sharing ideas and strategies, and to track work that supports queer scholars across institutions.

Portland Ballroom 251

Facilitators: Sarah Dwyer, Texas A&M University–San Antonio
Lee Hibbard, Purdue University
Rebekah Sims, Purdue University

Think Tank on Research Methods

A.03 The Messy and Complex Middle Ground between Method and Methodology: A Conversation on Research

In this cross-generational Think Tank session on methods, methodologies, and theory, MA-level and PhD-level graduate students, junior, and mid-career scholars come together to discuss the messy and complex middle ground between method and methodology. During this session, facilitators open up areas of discussion and inquiry with participants, covering questions such as How should... method and methodology interoperate?; What are the limitations of our privileged research methods?; What do emergent (new) methods and methodologies look like?; Which methods/methodologies prove useful over the course of a research career, and which are less? This session will also feature an overview of the CCCC Research Awards, including the newest Emergent Research/er awards.

Cultivating Feminist Capacity for Action

B.01 Cultivating Rhetorics of Interruption as Feminist Praxis in Rhetoric and Composition Studies

After presenting the results of our collaborative research on the ways in which feminist rhetoric and composition teacher-scholars continue to experience and navigate sexism and other exclusionary practices in the academy, we will engage attendees in a conversation with the intent to engage in grassroots organizing within the discipline and beyond. Participants will address questions such as:

- How can rhetoric and composition studies help us to understand, resist, and reframe patriarchal practices so deeply embedded in institutions of higher education?
- How can we best leverage the institutional locations of rhetoric and composition programs, writing programs, and writing centers to address systemic sexism and exclusion in our field and in the academy?
- How can we use our pedagogy to shift the culture of sexism, discrimination, and exclusion? What are the pedagogical potentials and risks of interruption (for instructors, students, administrators, etc.)?

Because the primary objective of this Cultivate session is to cultivate a space in which feminist compositionists and rhetoricians build our capacity to take strategic action, we hope these questions will enable attendees to work together to identify specific approaches to interruption as feminist praxis, including how we might sustain ourselves as professionals and how we can implement interruption as a rhetorical tool for social justice education and anti-oppression across institutions.

B.02 “Dull Duty” and Disciplinary Issues: A Roundtable with NCTE Editors

The purpose of this session is to broaden our understanding of the often-invisible processes and people who serve as guides and gatekeeper of our field’s periodicals. In order to help us better understand editorial practices and challenges, this session will begin with a report of results from a national study of journal editors in the field. After thus broadly surveying the role of the editor, editors from five journals will offer brief (5–7 minutes) remarks on the state of editing.

Portland Ballroom 257

Facilitators: Jonathan Alexander, University of California, Irvine

Cultivating Ourselves throughout Our Careers

B.03 Seasons of a Writing Teacher’s Life: Sustaining Energy throughout Our Careers

This Cultivate session will allow for a conversation about the unique challenges and privileges specific to writing teachers at various stages of their careers. We will introduce a set of discussion questions and then facilitate a workshop-style forum in order to glean from the group’s collective wisdom effective strategies, innovative solutions, and even positive reframing techniques that can help us—and colleagues at our home institutions—sustain our energy through the seasons of our careers. We hope that one outcome of the session will be a series of concrete strategies to bring home—or to advance to the CCCC for a position statement—in order to retain and cultivate teachers across the lifespan of their careers in both formal and informal ways.

Cultivate and Think Tank Sessions

Cultivating Accessibility

C.01 Acknowledging and Facilitating Invisible Disabilities in the Classroom and Community

Focusing on learning disabilities, affective and sensory conditions, and autism, this Cultivate session will foster awareness of neurodiversity in the classroom and will cultivate community around accessibility options for students with invisible disabilities. The goal of this interactive session is for everyone to gain increased openness toward others they might have previously misunderstood and become conscious of their own position within a varied cognitive landscape. Participants will leave with tools and insights to create more equitable conditions for learning. Additionally, during the session, we will work together to produce a list of possible practice/policy changes, areas for further study, and resources to share; this list will be continuously updated and made available to all, even those not in attendance.

Portland Ballroom 256

Facilitators: Ellen Birdwell, Alvin Community College
Natalie Malin, Texas Woman’s University
Madaline Walter, Benedictine College, Atchison, KS

C.02 What’s the Point of the MA in Composition Studies? Cultivating a Sustainable Future for Graduate Programs and Two-Year College Faculty Preparation

The spaces between MA in composition programs and faculty positions in two-year writing programs are fertile but largely uncultivated, as campuses and programs struggle to sustain themselves amid increasingly unfavorable budgetary and political environments, all the while dealing with diminished enrollment in the humanities. Programs, students, and faculty lose with this insularity. This session will draw on the resources of two- and four-year writing faculty, MA-in-composition program directors, and graduates of those programs to cultivate spaces for interinstitutional collaboration.

Portland Ballroom 257
Facilitators: Maggie Cecil, California State University, San Bernardino
Chloe de los Reyes, California State University, San Bernardino
Carol Haviland, California State University, San Bernardino
Darin Jensen, University of Nebraska-Lincoln
Nathan Jones, California State University, San Bernardino
Stephen Ruffus, Salt Lake Community College
Christie Toth, University of Utah

Think Tank on Taking Action as an Organization

C.03 CCCC Public Policy Think Tank

Professional organizations are expected to issue responses to events that come to the attention of national and international media relevant to their areas of commitment and expertise. While CCCC has a long history of preparing and issuing resolutions and statements addressing such matters (e.g., language rights, working conditions for writing teachers, writing assessment), it lacks a nimble means by which to address developments of concern to its membership that merit quick response.

This will be a working session in which attendees will participate in developing a set of concrete proposals for how CCCC might be enabled to take quick and appropriate action in response to issues of concern to its membership relevant to its area of commitment and expertise. Specifically, this Think Tank will be devoted to identifying and articulating

• the range of concerns arising in the public media to which CCCC as an organization should respond;
• the organizational mechanisms by which CCCC might determine how best to respond to such matters;
• the forms such responses might take.

Portland Ballroom 251

Facilitators: Matthew Abraham, University of Arizona
Jonathan Alexander, University of California, Irvine
Bruce Horner, University of Louisville
John Trimbur, Emerson College
Nancy Welch, University of Vermont, Burlington

Cultivate and Think Tank Sessions

Cultivating Intersectional Approaches to Academic Labor

D.01 Working and Getting Worked: An Interactive, Decolonial, Queer, and Feminist Roundtable on Labor in Rhetoric and Composition

Addressing the need for deeply intersectional approaches to issues of academic labor and building upon earlier cross-caucus work in this area, our Cultivate session aims (1) to shed light on how larger social and cultural problems of White supremacy, settler colonialism, neoliberalism, sexism, transphobia, ableism, and classism, among other political and social forces, pervade the workings of the academy; and (2) to cultivate relationships and materials that bring an intersectional perspective and sustainable approaches to labor issues within the conference space, in classrooms, at universities, across campuses, and in personal lives. This roundtable begins with a collaboratively produced framework that situates the contexts and logics of “Othered” women’s labor in the academy. Next, facilitators will engage attendees through series of questions and through texts, objects, and experiences that further consider the dimensions of “Othered” women’s labor in rhetoric and composition. The goal of this session is to provide an interactive experience that considers the complex dimensions of women’s labor in the profession and purposefully cultivates community around and through intersectional women’s identities inside and outside of the discipline.

D.03 Decolonizing Writing Assignments
In this facilitated discussion, participants will collaborate on decolonizing writing assignments, particularly for institutions or classrooms situated in transnational spaces. Our experiences teaching at an American branch campus in Qatar have made us think more deeply about the ways we cultivate connections between home literacies, first languages, and the writing classroom, and we are eager to invite others’ contributions into this conversation. Specifically, we’re wondering about others’ answers to these two questions: in what ways can we cultivate home literacies and languages in writing assignments, and what happens to our teacher identity/authority when we don’t speak our students’ first language or share their home literacies? We hope participants will leave the session with renewed commitments and action plans for inclusive writing instruction for multilingual writers, for welcoming home/indigenous languages and literacies into the classroom, for experimenting with multiple strategies that work best for our different contexts, or even for learning how to make sense of our own discomfort with the challenge of decolonizing writing.

Cultivating Caregiving

E.01 Cultivating Balance in Caregiving: A Cross-Generational Conversation

Our Cultivate session involves a cross-generational conversation taking up a phenomenon affecting all generations: all generations are caregivers and they are caring for all other generations. Our session begins with a brief introduction that draws on research and resources about care, caregiving, interdependence, and disability to set the topic. Conversation, however, will be the primary activity. Participants will move to cross-generational tables for open discussion of scenarios and concerns, guided by table leaders who will facilitate discussion, take notes, and report back to the large group and to the cosponsoring CCCCCs groups: CCCC Taskforce on Cross-Generational Connections, Standing Group on the Status of Women in the Profession, and the Committee on Disability Issues.

Portland Ballroom 251

Chair: K. Hyoejin Yoon, West Chester University
Facilitators: Patrick Berry, Syracuse University
Kristine Blair, Youngstown State University
Jay Dolmage, University of Waterloo, Ontario, Canada
Candace Epps-Robertson, Old Dominion University
Kay Halasek, The Ohio State University, Columbus
Lydia McDermott, Whitman College, Walla Walla, WA
Elisabeth Miller, University of Nevada, Reno
Louise Wetherbee Phelps, Old Dominion University
Christine Tulley, University of Findlay

Cultivating Our Public Voice

E.02 Cultivating a Public Voice: Entering Public Discourse as Public Intellectuals, Experts, Activists, and Digital Citizens

Concerned with public misconceptions about writing, the work of rhetorical studies, and the field of composition studies, many rhetoric and composition scholars have urged us to take up roles as public intellectuals, experts, community activists, and digital citizens, translating our knowledge for various publics, counterpublics, and audiences. Now is a kairotic moment to “go public.” In order to cultivate a public voice for individual scholars, students, and the broader field, the facilitators of this session offer examples of the way each has worked to enter public dialogues to bring about change. Facilitators will provide models and a process for others to follow. Ultimately, we hope to raise the profile of the field and of teachers and students in the discipline who wish to take on important public discussions and raise discourse to new levels.

Portland Ballroom 252

Facilitators: Paul Butler, University of Houston, “Public Intellectuals to the Rescue: Going Public to Promote Digital Literacy”
Frank Farmer, University of Kansas, “From Mediation to Remediation: The Unlikely Travels of a Counterpublic Intellectual”

Respondent: Ryan Skinnell, San Jose State University

E.03 Cultivating a More Equitable Professional Organization

The goal of this session is to work with a diverse group of participants from across identifications to develop a list of actionable recommendations for the CCCC Executive Committee and for the organization more generally. Building on the Cultivate session “Working and Getting Worked: An Interactive, Decolonial, Queer, and Feminist Roundtable on Labor in Rhetoric and Composition,” this Think Tank will start with a fifteen-minute rapid brainstorm of issues over Google Drive. These issues will be used to develop a collectively articulated vision statement or set of long-term goals, along with a clear list of action items that can be immediately delivered to the EC.

Portland Ballroom 256

Facilitators: Stephanie Kerschbaum, University of Delaware
Garrett Nichols, Bridgewater State University
Catherine Prendergast, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign
Joyce Rain Anderson, Bridgewater State University
Donnie Sackey, Wayne State University
Jennifer Sano-Franchini, Virginia Tech
Bo Wang, California State University, Fresno

The 30th Annual Poetry Forum: Exultation of Larks
D132
7:30 p.m.–10:30 p.m.
Chair: Katherine Oldmixon, Huston-Tillotson University, Austin, TX
Facilitator: Jennine Krueger, Huston-Tillotson University, Austin, TX

This forum has become a valued annual gathering for CCCC poets and friends of poetry. Those who write should bring original material to read for about five minutes. Those who enjoy the company of poets should come to listen, respond, and share in the pleasures of the occasion. Poet readers should contact Katherine Oldmixon (kdoldmixon@htu.edu) if they have questions.

Cultivate and Think Tank Sessions

Think Tank on CCCC Student Veteran Policy
F.01 Think Tank on Cultivating Change for Current, Former, and Future Members of the Military in Composition Studies
With all branches of the US military affected by reduced fiscal resources, dwindling troop strength, and a lack of a unified mission, the perceptions and experiences of transitioning military personnel may be distinctly different in 2016 than they were in 2011; in light of these evolving changes, college composition faculty face a new set of challenges for responding to transitioning service members. The 2017 CCCC Convention presents an excellent opportunity for cultivating conversation about what the 2015 CCCC student veteran policy is doing (for writing teachers, administrators, military students, and student veterans) two years since its passing. How does this policy stand up against the evolving experiences of service members transitioning out of the military and into college? This Think Tank session is meant to spark communication, build upon the community, and move us toward continued, sustainable efforts for working with military-affiliated students in writing programs and classes. Grounded in the Student Veterans in the College Composition Classroom policy statement, facilitators will lead attendees through reflection, scrutiny, and enacting change locally and nationally.

Mariana Grohowski, Indiana University Southeast
Cultivating Policy Advocacy

F.02 Taking Action: Everyday Advocacy

This session introduces participants to the idea of Everyday Advocacy: that, given the current narrative surrounding educational issues, we as teachers and scholars have a unique role in providing the public with a different narrative about issues we care about deeply (writing pedagogy, literacy, testing, etc.). Based in last year’s CCCC’s Taking Action Workshops and the Everyday Advocacy website (everydayadvocacy.org), the session will introduce participants to the background of this movement and the concepts that ground it; offer examples of how compositionists might introduce the ideas behind Everyday Advocacy to their graduate students and colleagues (through a full course in advocacy for writing teachers; through three-day summer workshops for K–16 teachers; and through existing courses); and work with participants to determine how they might incorporate advocacy approaches into their own teaching and how to get started.

In addition to this Cultivate session, Cathy Fleischer will offer Everyday Advocacy sessions in the Action Hub on Thursday (10:30–11:45 a.m.) and Friday (12:30–1:45 p.m.).

Portland Ballroom 256

Facilitators: Linda Adler-Kassner, University of California, Santa Barbara
Cathy Fleischer, Eastern Michigan University

F.03 Cultivating Capacity: Mentoring Challenges and Opportunities

This Cultivate session will take an action-oriented look at the challenges and opportunities inherent in mentoring with the goal of cultivating new voices in our field and in our organizations. Drawing on their experiences as both mentees and mentors, the facilitators of this session will focus especially on the kind of informal mentoring that can encourage a colleague to propose his first conference presentation or to run for an office in her regional TYCA association. Consideration also will be given to mentoring as a way of being, personally and professionally, as well as valued and necessary throughout one’s career. Participants will be invited to share examples of effective and ineffective mentoring and to articulate new ways

Cultivate and Think Tank Sessions

Cultivating Leadership

G.01 Cultivating Leadership on and off Campus: A Roundtable with Senior Administrators

In this Cultivate roundtable, senior faculty who have served in multiple leadership roles will discuss how leadership skills and strategies cross over into areas both expected and unexpected, on and off campus, and how we might communicate these to junior faculty in order to cultivate future leaders. After each facilitator briefly shares his or her unique experiences and insights, attendees will have the opportunity to engage in Q & A and discussion about effective and proactive leadership strategies.

Portland Ballroom 253

Chair: Howard Tinberg, Bristol Community College
Respondent: Douglas Hesse, The University of Denver, Colorado
Facilitators: Lynee Gaillet, Georgia State University, Atlanta, “Being ‘The Fixer’”
Susanmarie Harrington, University of Vermont, “Using Leadership Skills off Campus”
Barbara L’Epplattener, University of Arkansas–Little Rock, “Not Just Lifting as We Climb, but Making Room”
Barry Maid, Arizona State University, Phoenix, “Campus Leadership in Times of Austerity”
Kelly Ritter, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, “Whose Side Are You On?”
Shirley Rose, Arizona State University, “Faculty Shared Governance: Leading by Example”
Susan Thomas, The University of Sydney, Australia, “Promoting Leadership beyond US Borders”

G.02 Change That Pays the Bills

Many institutions of higher education highlight the importance of students developing strong written and verbal communication skills, yet the educators who tirelessly deliver the courses that cultivate those skills are often not adequately compensated for their work. This Think Tank will focus on pooling participants’ collective knowledge of ways to advocate for fair compensation at the state, institution, and programmatic levels. Participants can expect to join in a conversation in which they have the opportunity to both identify and learn about strategies and resources that those in attendance know have helped faculty members make positive strides toward just salaries. This collaborative effort asks participants to move beyond ruminating on the problem of low compensation and instead focus on teaching each other how to create positive change so we, as educators, can afford to continue teaching composition.

Portland Ballroom 258

Facilitators: Stacey Johnson, University of Colorado at Colorado Springs
Jennifer McArdle, University of Colorado at Colorado Springs

Cultivating Persistence and Success for International Students

G.03 Retention = Success (?): Fostering International Student Persistence and Achievement

In this interactive Cultivate session, second language writing specialists from graduate-level English for academic purposes (EAP) and first-year composition programs share stories of working in diverse settings to develop and evaluate innovative EAP and composition curricula to improve international, multilingual learners’ retention and achievement. After discussing examples of small but meaningful victories achieved with initiatives such as embedded tutorials, stretch programs, and intensive academic language courses, participants will develop strategies for overcoming challenges at their own institutions.

Portland Ballroom 257

Facilitators: Greer Murphy, Claremont Graduate University
Sarah Snyder, Arizona State University

Cultivating New Lines of Inquiry

G.04 Cultivating New Lines of Inquiry: Three Emerging Scholarly Spaces

This Cultivate session offers a shared space for three new lines of scholarly inquiry: Borderlands (Multilingual Latinx Writers), Rural Research and Advocacy, and Public Land Activism.

Portland Ballroom 256

Cultivating New Lines of Inquiry: Expanding Research and Advocacy for Multilingual Latinx Writers in the Borderlands and Beyond

Conversations about the role and importance of linguistic diversity in composition have been ongoing for decades, starting with (and before) the 1974 Students’ Rights to Their Own Language resolution. This interactive session will engage the audience in a discussion about new research methods and advocacy/pedagogical models for incorporating linguistic diversity in writing instruction. The session is guided by the following questions:

• (How) Do current theories and orientations to linguistic diversity in composition reflect and account for the diverse histories and experiences of our students?
• How do we continue to develop practical methods for researching language difference in composition?

Presenters will facilitate a crowdsourcing activity to invite contributions from the audience on theories and frameworks they use in multilingual research and advocacy (e.g., second language writing, translingualism, trans/multimodality, etc.).

Facilitators: Beth Brunk-Chavez, University of Texas at El Paso
Lucia Dura, University of Texas at El Paso
Laura Gonzales, University of Texas at El Paso
Kate Mangelsdorf, University of Texas at El Paso
Todd Ruecker, University of New Mexico

Cultivating New Lines of Inquiry: Rural Research and Advocacy

A session for scholars engaged in, or interested in beginning, research and advocacy in composition, rhetoric, and literacy studies as they pertain to rural education and rural literacies, whether that work takes place in schools, colleges, universities, nonprofits, or communities in rural areas. Since the publication of Rural Literacies in 2007, research into rural literacies and rhetorics has grown, with follow-up edited collections as well as numerous presentations, dissertations, articles, and community action projects. This session invites those interested in rural literacies together to:

• share their current projects,
• locate themselves with and speak back to the existing work on rural literacies,
• form new connections for possible collaborations, whether in the classroom or in research or community projects, and
• discover ways to be engaged in advocating for rural places, schools, and communities to have more of a public voice and public recognition.

Facilitators: Megan Adams, The University of Findlay
Cori Brewster, Eastern Oregon University
Chowaing Chagra Belekeh, University of Texas at El Paso
Kim Donehower, University of North Dakota
Abby Dubisar, Iowa State University
Helen Diana Eidson, Auburn University
Charlotte Hogg, Texas Christian University
Callie Kostelich, Texas Christian University
Caleb Pendygraft, Miami University of Ohio, Oxford
Marisa Sandoval Lamb, Columbia Basin College and University of Arizona
Eileen Schell, Syracuse University
W. Kurt Stavenhagen, Syracuse University

Cultivating New Lines of Inquiry: Public Land Activism

This session cultivates new lines of inquiry and research opportunities that focus on social action for all scholars in attendance. Because of our own research interests and the theme and location of the conference, we will be using the issue of public/private land use generally and the Malheur Refuge occupation specifically as touchstones to anchor the conversation. This session draws theoretical insights from ecocomposition, ecocriticism, organizational communication theory, conflict resolution, stasis theory, and rhetorical analysis as tools for social action on these issues. Potential areas of research collaboration include issues such as land use, indigeneity, ethical food sourcing, and social and geographic borders, and a way to move from theory to action on such topics. This Cultivate session is intended to be a place for scholars to share how they have developed new lines of inquiry that allow for productive research motivated by (and deeply attuned to) social action. Rather than presenting our compendium of strategies as an end game, we want to combine our ideas in a lively conversation with session participants in the hopes that all in attendance will walk away with a handy take-home toolkit of dynamic and editable strategies for rhetoric and composition scholarship as well as new writing partners to get our collaborative work published.

Facilitators: Douglas Christensen, University of Utah
Joshua Lenart, University of Utah
David Sumner, Linfield College
Jessie Woolley-Richards, University of Utah

Cultivate and Think Tank Sessions

Cultivating a Culture of Teaching

H.01 Cultivating a Culture of Teaching in Large Composition Programs

How can we make the actual teaching of writing matter more in large composition programs? How can we foster communities of teachers in programs where faculty often feel isolated and unnoticed? How can we connect the work we do in our programs to what writing teachers are doing at other sites—including high schools, two-year colleges, and community literacy groups? This Think Tank hopes to bring together teachers and administrators from a wide range of institutions to share ideas about how the design of large composition programs can foster (or impede) effective teaching. After a brief opening survey of some current best practices, participants will be asked to work in small groups to develop a list of concrete strategies for changing the teaching culture of our programs and departments.

Cultivating Visibility for Institutional Service

H.02 Cultivating Institutional and Administrative Visibility

Despite Boyer’s arguments, starting in the 1990s, that universities should acknowledge their function as places of research and learning, discussions about administrative and other “service” leadership positions are oftentimes cautionary tales about taking on such positions before tenure is secured. Administrative work, typically labeled as service, does not “count” as much in the tripartite value system held by most universities that privilege first scholarship, then teaching, and relatively far below these two, service. Writing program administrators, as well as writing and technology specialists, have struggled with making all kinds of writing program technology–related and administrative work visible at their institutions. This session will cultivate a space to share strategies that have been effective in making labor visible. In this session we will share, and have participants share, strategies for making their labor “visible” within systems that usually only privilege typical pathways or positions (especially tenure track). Please consider bringing a laptop, tablet, or smartphone to participate digitally.

Cultivating Intellectualism in FYC

H.03 Public Intellectualism in an Anti-Intellectual Public: Implications for First-Year Composition

This session was inspired by a recent Chronicle of Higher Education article titled “Teaching Students to Be Public Intellectuals.” We will discuss how this endeavor can be conducted in the first-year writing classroom and will address the following questions:

- Where do first-year composition students (and first-year composition courses) fit into discussions of “the public intellectual”?
- What can we do at the undergrad level to foster a truly intellectual orientation among students who have been raised in a somewhat anti-intellectual era?
- What is the distinction between doing “public work” (e.g., service-learning projects, contributing to nonprofit marketing campaigns, etc.) and acting as “public intellectuals”?
- How is this year’s election rhetoric a reflection of where we are (or are not) in terms of “public intellectualism”?

Cultivate and Think Tank Sessions

Cultivating Social Justice Work in CCCC

I.01 Cultivating and Mobilizing Social Justice Work in CCCC

This collaborative session engages participants in a discussion about the organization’s stance on and engagement in social justice work nationally, which includes the ways the writing classroom is a space for social justice. The facilitators will ask participants to help continue thinking about a vision of what social justice means for CCCC as an organization and how to mobilize this work for members. This session is meant to be fully interactive and dialogue-based, producing ideas and work that will shape the organization and what happens at 4C 2018 in Kansas City.

Portland Ballroom 257

Facilitators: Damián Baca, University of Arizona, Tucson
Frankie Condon, University of Waterloo
Qwo-Li Driskill, Oregon State University, Corvallis
Asao Inoue, University of Washington, Tacoma
Stephanie Kerschbaum, University of Delaware
Elaine Richardson, The Ohio State University, Columbus
Vershawn Young, University of Waterloo, Canada

Cultivating the Future of Online Writing Instruction

I.02 Cultivating Capacity, Creating Change: Assessing the Future of Online Writing Instruction (OWI)

There are brilliant voices doing amazing things in their online writing courses, and there is a need to encourage these voices to speak; therefore, encouragement will be at the center of this Cultivate session. This session will be made up of three concurrent mini-discussions covering the following topics:

- Cultivating New Voices/New Lines of Inquiry in OWI Research and Scholarship
- Sustaining Ourselves as OWI Professionals
- Cultivating OWI Connections

After participants engage in small-group discussions, they will come together as a large group to share ideas. Participants will be encouraged to discuss how to get involved in the subfield of OWI.
Groups will record their main thoughts and action items from the small-group discussions, which will be collected, polished, and summarized on the OWI Community Forum (http://www.owicommunity.org/forum). Attendees should leave this session inspired to make a contribution to the subfield of OWI and with an understanding of how OWI fits into writing studies as a whole. Participants will be directed on how they can seek out support and create or maintain OWI connections among established scholars so that the participants’ contributions are shared, whether they are non-tenure-track faculty, do adjunct work at a community college, or are just beginning their scholarly studies.

Cultivating a Culture of Mentoring

I.03 Where’s the Mentor Here? Creating a Culture of Mentoring in the New University and Beyond

Statistics show that up to 70% of the teaching workforce in higher education is composed of non-tenure-track faculty and graduate student instructors. In composition courses, the number of contingent faculty is even higher (AAUP). As the university changes, it is crucial to have trusted mentors who can guide graduate students through the rigors of graduate school, first-time instructorships, scholarly writing projects, and the job search. Mentors are also needed for non-tenure-track faculty, who often suffer from lack of visibility and burnout, as well as those who choose to pursue alt-ac positions as the university changes. In our session, we reconsider ways to create a culture of mentoring within and outside of our writing programs. How can we work beyond the often hierarchical relationships of tenure-track faculty and contingent faculty to create a culture of mentoring and egalitarianism? How can the field of composition, rhetoric, and writing studies create opportunities for mentoring that include the complex identities of present and future compositionists? What happens if our mentoring efforts are met with resistance?

Cultivate and Think Tank Sessions

Think Tank on Prior Learning Assessment and Competency-Based Education

J.01 Prior Learning Assessment and Competency-Based Education: What Writing Teachers Need to Know

Although prior learning assessment has existed for about four decades, in the last five years both it and the newer model of competency-based education have emerged as growing trends in higher education. These practices are still relatively unknown among most college writing faculty, however. As student debt continues to rise and colleges and universities seek out more (path)ways to increase graduation rates, writing faculty need to be informed about the workings of these approaches and, as some composition scholars have argued, the opportunities they may present.

Cultivating Graduate and Early Career Academic Writers

J.02 Meeting the Needs of Adult Writers: A Programmatic Coaching Perspective

This Cultivate mini-workshop session addresses the professionalization needs of graduate students and academic writers in early career. We consider how writing programs should include both program-level writing development opportunities and individual coaching for these adult writers. Graduate school is the new college, and the needs of adult writers is one of just-in-time learning, an andragogical model, rather than the just-in-case learning, the pedagogical model used with most undergraduate writing. Dissertations, scholarly articles, monographs, edited collection chapters, job materials, and the like form the corpus of just-in-time writing instruction needs that we address. Coaching is the preferred teaching style for many of these adult writers, and we demonstrate why and how to begin to approach adult writers differently from their undergraduate counterparts.

Cultivating CCCC Conference Proposals

A successful convention program begins with high-quality proposals. In this Cultivate session, experienced Stage 1 and Stage 2 reviewers will describe the review (and acceptance) processes for each stage and the proposal submission policies and procedures. Additionally, facilitators will offer insights and advice for how to develop a strong CCCC proposal. During this interactive session, participants will have the opportunity to engage in a mock proposal review, to ask questions about the submission form and process, and to begin developing ideas for CCCC 2018 proposals.

K.01 Cultivating Response: Seeing Teacher Comments through Students’ Eyes

Responding to students’ writing consumes so much time, energy, and empathy, and yet, paradoxically, it is the element of our work that we least understand. In this workshop-style Cultivate session, we will examine the task of responding to student writing and explore how students read and understand our written comments. Participants will first read a student’s draft and the teacher’s comments and discuss this material in a small-group breakout. We will then show a video of a discourse-based interview with the student, exploring what sense the student made of the teacher’s comments relative to the intentions for the paper. Together, we will explore the basic questions: What kind of reader do we become when we take up residence in the margins of our students’ papers? How do our comments help students become confident writers? And we will raise questions about responding, given the constraints of faculty workload and the demands of specific student populations. From a discussion of one draft, we will move to a larger reflection on what it means to be a thoughtful reader of student writing.

Facilitators: Chris Anson, North Carolina State University
Nancy Sommers, Harvard University
Howard Tinberg, Bristol Community College

K.02 Cultivating Your Future: An Intergenerational Conversation on Paths toward—and beyond—Retirement

Rhetoric and composition, like other fields, is in the early stages of a mass exodus of senior faculty as a generation of scholars goes into retirement; this carries momentous personal, professional, institutional, and political consequences. We need to foster field-wide discussion of the issues raised by this generational shift both for retiring faculty and for the profession. This Cultivate roundtable, sponsored by the SIG for Senior, Late Career, and Retired Professionals in Rhet/Comp/Writing Studies, brings together scholars from different generations—those anticipating and planning retirement to those long-retired—to explore not only the personal dimension of retirement and the new horizons it opens, but also the impact such retirements have on the profession.

K.03 Think Tank on Social Justice in Organizational and Disciplinary Spaces

Think Tank for Racial and Social Justice in the Writing Program Administrators–Graduate Organization and Beyond

Sponsored by the Writing Program Administrators–Graduate Organization

The WPA-GO (Writing Program Administrators–Graduate Organization) invites attendees to an interactive Think Tank session where we develop concrete strategies for working toward a socially just future inside our professional organizations of CCCC and CWPA as well as in composition and rhetoric more broadly. As a graduate organization, we are dedicated to interrupting racism and bias, and we are also committed to ensuring that conference and disciplinary spaces represent the needs and interests of graduate students from historically marginalized and underrepresented groups. This featured session is designed to “cultivate” collaborative exchanges that are action-oriented and audience-engaged with the goal of explicitly confronting racism through critical and intersectional lenses. Recognizing that the work of undoing racism and bias is complex and situation-specific makes further conversation during and after the convention even more

Saturday Keynote Session

Portland Ballroom 251 & 258
9:30 a.m.–10:30 a.m.

Keynote Speaker: Jose Antonio Vargas

Jose Antonio Vargas is a Pulitzer Prize–winning journalist and filmmaker whose work centers on the changing American identity. He is the founder of Define American, a nonprofit media and culture organization that seeks to elevate the conversation around immigration and citizenship in America. In 2015, MTV aired White People, a television special he directed on what it means to be young and white in America, as part of its “Look Different” campaign. In February 2016, Vargas launched #EmergingUS, a multimedia news platform he conceived focusing on race, immigration, and the complexities of multiculturalism.

In June 2011, the New York Times Magazine published a groundbreaking essay Vargas wrote in which he revealed and chronicled his life in America as an undocumented immigrant. A year later, he appeared on the cover of TIME magazine worldwide with fellow undocumented immigrants as part of a follow-up cover story he wrote. He then wrote, produced, and directed Documented, a documentary feature film on his undocumented experience. Its world premiere was at the AFI Docs film festival in Washington, DC, in 2013; it was released in theaters and broadcast on CNN in 2014, and it received a 2015 NAACP Image Award nomination for outstanding documentary. Documented is now available on various digital platforms.

Among other accolades Vargas has received are a Public Service Award from the National Council of La Raza, the country’s largest Latinx advocacy organization; the Salem Award from the Salem Award Foundation, which draws upon the lessons of the Salem Witch Trials of 1692; and the Freedom to Write Award from PEN Center USA.

A very proud graduate of San Francisco State University (’04), where he was named Alumnus of the Year in 2012, and Mountain View High School (’00), he loves jazz, hip hop, and anything by Gershwin, and worships at the altars of Altman, Almodóvar, Didion, Baldwin, and Orwell.

<td>L.01 Deepening the Conversation: Cultivating Connections between High School and College Writing Instructors</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>High school and college writing teachers share many of the same goals and challenges, but opportunities to converse and collaborate as colleagues across institutional levels are rare. This Cultivate session, led by facilitators that include both high school and college instructors, creates space for discussion and action on secondary–university transitions. First, we invite participants into small-group conversations about what it means to prepare students for college-level writing and how institutional and political forces are impacting writing pedagogy. Next, participants will choose among four interactive mini-workshops on models for action: vertical alignment teams, professional development workshops, analysis of supervisory hierarchies, and high school–college writing exchange programs. Participants will have the opportunity to think collaboratively with colleagues across instructional levels and will leave with ideas for concrete action to promote similar cross-institutional spaces at their home institutions.</td>

| This session seeks to get at our contemporary unraveling in higher education (and the world) as an opportunity to start fresh, to see with a new pair of eyes, through groups of I’s. What opportunities and activities might we create as we write collaboratively? In so doing, we are acknowledging and responding to a socially just need to work together, to expand knowledge and understanding, and to strengthen... our organization (in the broadest sense). To that end, the session will explore several ways to get at collaboration, via both large and small groups. As a cohesive group, participants will cultivate a number of quick takes to be modified and appropriated for themselves, from a book discussion to class writing in Drive, and on to blogging (and micro-blogging). In smaller groups, we will then begin cultivating collaborative writing processes and best practices from our participants.

Postconvention Workshops
2:00–5:00 p.m.

Open to all convention registrants; no additional registration required.

SW.01 “A Bridge across Our Fears”: Teaching Aspiring Teachers and Tutors through Story
As educators tasked with preparing aspiring teachers and tutors for working effectively—and justly—with student writers, we understand the power of stories to shape how teachers and tutors think about who students are, what they need, and why they make the choices they do as they compose. In this half-day workshop, we will lead participants in an exploration of the role progressive and alternative young adult literature might play in teacher/tutor education and will help participants create exercises and assignments designed to help aspiring teachers and tutors develop nuanced and compassionate storytelling practices about and for their students.

Portland Ballroom 257

Speakers: Frankie Condon, University of Waterloo
Sheryl Scales, SUNY Potsdam

SW.02 Hey Teacher, Lead Them Kids in Song: A Workshop on Music and Performance for Compositionists
In its fourth consecutive year at the CCCC Convention, this half-day workshop infuses music and performance powerfully into composition pedagogy and professional development to enhance writing instruction and build community connections. This workshop introduces and explores a variety of performative exercises and embodied rhetorics derived from participants’ own interpersonal, bodily-kinesthetic, and musical intelligences, culminating in a reflective discussion and planning of performative strategies.

E145

Speakers: Lauren Esposito, Marywood University
Nicole Galante, Stony Brook University
Shawn Garrett, Friends Academy
June Griffin, University of Nebraska-Lincoln
David Hyman, Lehman College, CUNY, Bronx
Peter Khost, Stony Brook University
Faith Kurtyka, Creighton University
Robert Lazaroff, Nassau Community College, SUNY
SW.03 Cultivating Strategic Action in Teaching against Plagiarism: Using Plagiarism as an Educational Opportunity

Too often, teachers seek to address plagiarism through policing tactics. However, plagiarism can be a learning and writing strategy, a feature of the transition from outsider to insider in the development of a writer. This interactive workshop is intended to help writing instructors develop a repertoire of practical teaching strategies to help students learn how to engage in conversation with previous texts effectively and appropriately.

Portland Ballroom 256

Speakers: Valerie Seiling Jacobs, Columbia University
Scott Leonard, Youngstown State University, OH
Gerald Nelms, Wright State University, Dayton, OH
Carole Papper, Hofstra University, Las Vegas, NV
Robert Yagelski, SUNY-Albany

SW.04 Bridging Expectations: A Workshop on the Alignment of High School English and First-Year Composition

Sponsored by the Oregon Writing and English Advisory Committee

This collegial workshop will center on the intersection, as well as the divergences, of the Common Core State Standards with the OWEAC outcomes. We will refine our understanding of terminology and explore productive curricular design for our revised writing outcomes, which have an increased focus on students’ facility with rhetorical concepts and vocabulary, as well as our expectation that students will develop metacognitive awareness.

Portland Ballroom 255

Chair: Kate Sullivan, Lane Community College
Speakers: Ashley Benson, Blue Mountain Community College
Vicki Tolar Burton, Oregon State University, Corvallis
Nancy Cook, Clatsop Community College
Donna Evans, Eastern Oregon University, La Grande
Nancy Knowles, Eastern Oregon University, La Grande
Jillanne Michell, Umpqua Community College
Jodi Naas, Portland Community College
Cornelia Paraskevas, Western Oregon University
Christopher Syrnyk, Oregon Institute of Technology
Mindy Williams, Central Oregon Community College
SW.05 Writing Studio Pedagogy: Cultivating Student Voice and Capacity for Change

Writing Studio describes an alternative approach to teaching, supporting, and conducting inquiry into writing alongside student writers in a variety of higher education sites. This year’s half-day workshop focuses on Writing Studio curriculum and pedagogy. Workshop facilitators will provide insight into how to design studio activities for different student populations or courses and will share a wealth of curricular approaches for scaffolding student growth and transfer of learning.

Aurora Matzke, Biola University, La Mirada, CA
Mark Sursavage, University of Houston, TX
John Tassoni, Miami University Middletown

SW.06 Writing and Publishing Op-Eds: Cultivating Public Voices

This interactive workshop is part of what Paula Mathieu calls a “public turn” in composition studies, particularly how teaching writing connects with our lives outside the classroom. Writing op-eds is one way that faculty, students, and other writers can advocate for social change. With a goal of cultivating voices of diversity in mainstream print, online, and mobile newspapers, workshop participants will learn how to write op-eds, publish them, and integrate op-ed writing into writing courses.

Established Rules for Conduct of the Annual Business Meeting

1. All voting members should be properly identified, and only members in good standing may vote in the business meeting.
2. A quorum of seventy-five members of CCCC in good standing is required for the transaction of business in this meeting.
3. Anyone wishing the floor should go to a microphone and give his or her name and institution when recognized by the chair.
4. If procedural rules are adopted by a majority vote of the members present, a two-thirds vote will be required to suspend or amend them.
5. Members may offer for discussion and action a sense-of-the-house motion, as specified in item 4 in the “Basic Rules for the Handling of Resolutions.” Such motions, if passed, will be broadcast to the members, not as an official CCCC statement, but as the wish of the majority of the members voting at the Annual Business Meeting. Sense-of-the-house motions can affect action by the Executive Committee, or another appropriate CCCC body, and can become the substance of a resolution at the next annual convention.
6. Sturgis’s Standard Code of Parliamentary Procedure applies on all questions of procedure and parliamentary law not specified in the Constitution, Bylaws, or other rules adopted by CCCC.
7. The Parliamentarian interprets the rules on parliamentary procedures.
8. A secret ballot will be ordered by a motion to vote by secret ballot and an affirmative vote of at least ten members.

Procedural Rules Proposed for Adoption at the Annual Business Meeting

In discussion of resolutions and all other items of business except sense-of-the-house motions:

a. Three minutes will be allowed for each speaker each time.

b. No one may speak a second time on a subject until all who wish to speak have been heard.

c. The presiding officer will attempt to provide a balance in recognizing pro and con speakers. If there are no speakers opposing a motion under consideration, the chair may ask the house to move immediately to a vote in order to expedite the business.
d. Discussion will be limited to no more than fifteen minutes (not including discussion of amendments) on any main motion or resolution; this time may be extended in ten-minute increments by consent of the body.

e. Discussion of an amendment to a motion or resolution will be limited to no more than ten minutes; this time may be extended in six-minute increments by consent of the body.

f. Amendments to amendments will not be accepted, in order to avoid confusion.

In discussion of sense-of-the-house motions:

a. To be considered for deliberation, a sense-of-the-house motion must be prepared in writing, must not exceed fifty words, and must be submitted to the chair in three copies before the call for the adoption of the agenda at the beginning of the business meeting. (Brief prefatory statements in explanation of the motion are not part of the motion and need not be submitted in writing.)

b. A sense-of-the-house motion may not be amended, except for editorial changes acceptable to the mover.

c. Speakers on sense-of-the-house motions shall be limited to two minutes each, except by dispensation of the chair.

d. Discussion of sense-of-the-house motions shall be limited to ten minutes, except by dispensation of the chair.

Basic Rules for the Handling of Resolutions at the Annual Business Meeting

1. A call for resolutions will appear in the February issue of College Composition and Communication. Proposed resolutions received by the chair of the Resolutions Committee two weeks before the conference require the signature of only five conference members; however, additional signatures are welcome as a means of indicating the base of support for the resolution.

2. The function of the Resolutions Committee is to review all resolutions presented and to prepare resolutions of its own in areas in which it or the Executive Committee believes conference action is needed. Special attention will be given to including areas covered in sense-of-the-house motions passed at the last Annual Business Meeting. In reviewing resolutions, the Resolutions Committee is responsible for combining all resolutions that duplicate one another in substance and for editing all resolutions.

The Resolutions Committee will report all properly submitted resolutions to the Annual Business Meeting with a recommendation for action.

Resolutions that call for conference action in the areas in which the CCCC Constitution assigns authority to the officers or the Executive Committee will be clearly labeled as advisory to the officers or the Executive Committee.

Resolutions of appreciation may be prepared by the CCCC officers and may be presented by the Resolutions Committee.
The Resolutions Committee will hold an open meeting during the Special Interest Group time period to clarify and discuss these resolutions with concerned conference members. It is especially urgent that the authors of resolutions or their delegates come to this meeting. Although no new resolutions may be added at this time, members suggesting additional resolutions will be informed that they may introduce sense-of-the-house motions at the Annual Business Meeting in accordance with the rule given in item 4 below. The Resolutions Committee will also have a closed meeting after the open meeting to make such editorial and substantive changes as the deliberations of the open meeting may suggest.

3. As necessary, resolutions will be retyped so that complex changes will be incorporated into the copies of the resolutions distributed at the Annual Business Meeting.

During the report of the Resolutions Committee at the Annual Business Meeting, one member of the Committee will read the “resolved” portion of each resolution and move its adoption. Adoption will require only a simple majority of members present. Action will be taken on each resolution before the next resolution is presented.

The CCCC officers at their postconvention session will determine the dissemination of, and the action to be taken on, all resolutions adopted.

4. Members may offer sense-of-the-house motions for discussion and action. Such motions, if passed, will be announced to CCCC members, not as official CCCC statements, but as the will of the majority of members at the Annual Business Meeting. Sense-of-the-house motions can affect action by the Executive Committee, or by another appropriate CCCC body, as well as become the substance of a resolution at the next annual convention. In order to be considered, sense-of-the-house motions of no more than fifty words must be presented in writing (three copies) to the chair of the Annual Business Meeting before the adoption of the agenda.

Hacker Handbooks:
Because writing is the core of all academic work

More than 12 million students have trusted Hacker handbooks for straight answers to questions about writing. That’s an entire generation of college writers gaining confidence, building skills, and succeeding with a tool designed for quick access. For a new generation, Hacker Handbooks provide the reliable and comprehensive instruction needed to meet today’s writing challenges, a clear advantage over the hit-or-miss information found online.

With author Nancy Sommers, we’re developing content and tools for students who’ll need to compose multimodally; read critically and reflectively; participate in digital learning communities; and become responsible contributors to research conversations.

Lunsford Handbooks: Andrea Lunsford knows student writing

One of the nation’s foremost experts in the field of composition and rhetoric, Andrea A. Lunsford has conducted studies of student writing for decades, collecting thousands of pieces of academic and informal writing from students across the nation and throughout their college careers. Her latest research shows that there’s a literacy revolution going on. Students are writing more than ever—in classrooms, workplaces, and social spaces—and they’re using all kinds of tools—from pencils to smartphones—to interact with audiences.

With Andrea as a guide, students will understand how much they already know about writing—and they’ll be able to move toward what they need to do to succeed as writers, in composition courses and beyond.

Clear writing is a teachable style

Most first-year writing courses give no systematic instruction in prose readability. Instructors have too many targets to hit. We do grammar brush-ups, deal with fragments, and discuss genres, yet we have no orderly way to deal with the fact that students write lousy sentences. We may give individual feedback on active verbs, etc., in the margins, but it has no effect on those many students who don’t understand what a sentence is or how it works.

So I developed a new way to teach writing: the Readable Writing Method. It’s grounded in the insights of the late Rudolf Flesch, author of The Art of Readable Writing. In the 25th anniversary edition of that book, Dr. Flesch expressed regret that his readability insights had never been taken up by college instructors. That’s no longer true.

Here’s my claim, after 20 years of experience with this newish course: most of today’s college students can learn to write clear, readable prose in one semester of freshman comp. The course must have (1) tight focus on readability as the goal of the course, and (2) careful arrangement of lessons in a sequence of skills that can be practiced, combined, and mastered.

Clear writing, it turns out, is the effect of a small number of teachable behaviors. (Dr. Flesch knew this.) The first novelty of this unique course is its theme: learning to be clear for the reader. The second novelty is the sequence of skills. Some are familiar—like how to use active verbs—and some are unusual—like controlling average sentence length.

In the first eight weeks, we attend sentence school, building on insights from Flesch and adding some of my own; we learn for the sake of the reader to construct simple, vivid sentences. In the last six weeks, having mastered the production of good sentences, we enter essay school. This is a mini-course in organizing the reader’s experience by using a thesis sentence, transitions, and a satisfying ending. We get good results at this point precisely because we have delayed the writing of thesis-based essays until the sentence has been mastered.

I have taught the course successfully more than 50 times in the Boston area and have captured it in a 76-page book called The College Writing Guide (sometimes John Maguire’s College Writing Guide). The CWG contains most of the course, including all topics in order, with explanations, and all the in-class and homework exercises. I have been selling it online at readablewriting.com for $19.90 for the last couple of years. Here’s what instructors have said:

“I can’t see why any writing instructor would use any other Freshman Comp textbook.”
--Daniel Smith, best-selling author of Monkey Mind, professor, the College of New Rochelle

“I used your guide the first part of my semester and found it extremely helpful! The students’ writing significantly improved after the human interest and active verb lessons.”
--Susan Laver-Whelan, instructor, College of Southern Maryland

“This semester, I used the book as an assigned workbook for the first five weeks of the course. Their writing improved a lot this semester—it might be the best semester I’ve had. Their sentences got a lot better. ... I’m a real fan of this book; I tell everybody about it. I’m thankful for it because I don’t have the time to invent more materials for my classes, and this package really works. I’ve been teaching college writing for more than 20 years, and this is the best resource I’ve found.”
--Kim Holcomb, instructor, University of Ohio

In a society largely living with chronic illness, the line between expert and patient increasingly blurs. In Living Chronic: Agency and Expertise in the Rhetoric of Diabetes, Lora Arduser not only examines these boundaries but shifts them to create a multidimensional, fluid picture of patient agency.

“Arduser gives patients agency within her text by using their words so effectively and highlighting their contributions to the book itself.” —Barbara Heifferon

Find opportunity and value with CCCC

Take a closer look at the Conference on College Composition and Communication

CCC is the leading organization in writing studies, offering not only the largest meeting of writing specialists in the world every spring but also a relevant and strategic repository of resources, research, and networking channels to help you be your best.

- CCCC's extensive grants and awards program provides opportunities to be recognized for your scholarship, to apply for funds for your next research project, or to receive travel support to learn from and with your colleagues.
- College Composition and Communication maintains a space for thoughtful examination of current issues in the field.
- CCCC sponsors advocacy efforts, inviting you to engage with legislative and regulatory issues that matter to you at the federal, state, and local levels.

There's a lot we can do together as members of CCCC. The first step is simple. If you're not a member, join CCCC by subscribing to College Composition and Communication today, and if you are a member, share the benefits of CCCC by telling a friend.
