Indexes

Volume 102  September 2012–July 2013

Author Index

Alonso, Orlando. [See DelliCarpini, Margo, and Orlando Alonso]

Bittman, Franny. [See Bickens, Sarah, Franny Bittman, and David J. Connor]

Blandingame, James. [See Metzger, Kenan, Andrea Box, and James Blandingame]

Blandingame, James Jr. [See Nilsen, Aileen Pace, James Blandingame Jr., and Don L. F. Nilsen]

Boerst, Timothy. [See Khasnabish, Debi, Catherine H. Reschkl, Melissa Snell, and Timothy Boerst]

Box, Andrea. [See Metzger, Kenan, Andrea Box, and James Blandingame]

Brown, Angela. [See Townsend, Jane S., Allan Nail, Jennifer Cheveallier, and Angela Brown]

Bull, Kelly Byrne. Margaret Dunlap, Cheryl North-Coleman, Jeffrey Kaplan, and Lois Stover. "Change" as an Interdisciplinary Theme: YA Literature in the Content Areas (Teaching Young Adult Literature). January 121–25.

Bullard, Lisa. [See Petrone, Robert, and Lisa Bullard]

Bungarnar, Barri. [See Gilles, Carol, Lina Trigos Carrillo, Yang Wang, Jenny Segall, and Barri Bungarnar]

Carrillo, Lina Trigos. [See Gilles, Carol, Lina Trigos Carrillo, Yang Wang, Jenny Segall, and Barri Bungarnar]

Case, Jennifer. Carve (Poetry). March 95.

Case, Jennifer. In the Afternoon I Play Chess with the Students (Poetry). March 96.

Author Index
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Title Index</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>At the Station (Poetry). Patricia Corbus. November 133.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Breaking Down Literature Boxes While Traveling with the Little Prince (Speaking My Mind). Beth Aviv. September 100–02.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Carve (Poetry): Jennifer Case. March 95.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Case for the Autistic Perspective in Young Adult Literature, A: Rachel F. Van Hart. November 27–36.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Challenging Perspectives on Young Adult Literature. Stan P. Connors. May 69–73. “Change” as an Interdisciplinary Theme: YA Literature in the Content Areas (Teaching Young Adult Literature). January 121–25.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Designing a High School or Middle School Course (or Unit) in Professional Writing (Professional Writing in the English Classroom). Jonathan Bush and Leah Zuidema. July 94–97.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Developing Collaborative Systems for Learning (Success with ELLs). Sarah Caccio. September 96–97.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Embracing Intercultural Diversification: Teaching Young Adult Literature with Native American Themes. Keran Metzger, Andrea Box, and James Blasingame. May 57–62.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Exploring the Connection between Graphic Novel and Film. Ashley Kaye Dallacqua. November 64–70.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Title Index

Putting Characters First in a Middle School Classroom. Amanda Sass-Henke. September 71–75.

Quest of Father and Son, The: Illuminating Character Identity, Motivation, and Conflict in Cormac McCarthy’s The Road. Chris Gilbert. September 40–47.

Making an Impression: YA Authors and Their Influential Teachers. Brooke Eisenbach and Joan F. Kaywell. May 74–79.

Mentoring in Community (Mentoring Matters). Rachel Malchow Lloyd. March 103–06.

Odysseus Deconstructed: Crossing the Threshold into Critical Thinking. Emily Nicole Howell. September 61–66.

Subject Index

artwork
  Building a Collective Understanding of Prisons. March 38–44.

assessment (see also Common Core State Standards)
  Assessing ELL Students in Mainstream Classes: A New Dilemma for the Teachers (Success with ELLs). January 126–29.

Pencils Down: Is Mimicking the Behaviors of "Good Readers" Bad for Good Readers? May 63–68.

Songs of the Caged Birds: Literacy and Learning with Incarcerated Youth. Peter Williamson, Megan Mercurio, and Constance Walker. March 31–37.

Storytelling and the Years After (Poetry). Amanda Nicole Guilla. November 137.

Teaching Young Adult Literature. Mike Roberts. September 92–95, January 121–25, May 89–90.

““These words are not mine”: Are We Still Teaching Literature When We Use Adaptations? (High School Matters). Michael LoMonico. November 13–15.

They Never Called Home (Poetry). Scott Hebenstreit. January 120.

To Read or Not to Read: Five Approaches to Teaching Shakespeare (Research for the Classroom). Brandon Shoemaker. March 111–14.

Teaching Classic Literature with Comic Books and Virtual Lit Trips. Nancy B. Sardone. September 67–70.

Teaching English in the Age of Incarceration (EF in Focus). Marc Lamont Hill. March 16–18.

Teaching the "I Had" to Tenth Graders (Poetry). Marilyn Pyle. September 47.

To Kill a Mockingbird as a Conduit for Using Shakespeare’s Othello. Margaret A. Dulaney. November 37–43.

Using a Prop Box to Create Emotional Memory and Creative Play for Teaching Shakespeare’s Othello. Amanda Nicole Guilla. September 13–15.

Using To Kill a Mockingbird as a Conduit for Teaching about the School-to-Prison Pipeline. Stellwyn Comfort Maher. March 45–52.

What Happens When High School Students Write in a College Course? A Study of Dual Credit. Howard Timberg and Jean-Paul Nadeau. May 35–42.

Why Should We Have All the Fun? Encouraging Colleagues to Read YA Novels across the Curriculum (Teaching Young Adult Literature). Mike Roberts. September 92–95.

With a Little Help from Their Friends: Making the Transition from Student to Teacher. Susan Spangler. January 87–92.

Working with English Language Learners: Looking Back, Moving Forward (Success with ELLs). Margo Dell’Carpini and Orlando Alonso. May 91–93.

“Working with my mentor is like having a second brain/hands/eyes/eyes”: Perceptions of Novice Teachers. Carol Gilles, Lina Trigos Carrillo, Yang Wang, Jenny Stegall, and Barri Bumgarner. January 78–86.

YA Literature Belongs in the Classroom Because . . . (Teaching Young Adult Literature). May 89–90.

Anything But Typical. Case for the Autistic Perspective in Young Adult Literature, A. November 31–32.

Subject Index

"History with Feelings": Nonfiction Titles for Teens (Off the Shelves). January 111.

Case for the Autistic Perspective in Young Adult Literature, A. November 27–36.
"Change" as an Interdisciplinary Theme: YA Literature in the Content Areas (Teaching Young Adult Literature). January 121–25.

Compound, The. Why Should We Have All the Fun? Encouraging Colleagues to Read YA Novels across the Curriculum (Teaching Young Adult Literature). September 94.

Dead End in Norvelt.

Gone, the Bad, and the Barbie, The. A Doll's History and Her Impact on Us. "History with Feelings": Nonfiction Titles for Teens (Off the Shelves). January 112.

Life as We Know It. Why Should We Have All the Fun? Encouraging Colleagues to Read YA Novels across the Curriculum (Teaching Young Adult Literature). September 94.

Maze Runner, The. Why Should We Have All the Fun? Encouraging Colleagues to Read YA Novels across the Curriculum (Teaching Young Adult Literature). September 93.

Mississippi Trial, 1955. Why Should We Have All the Fun? Encouraging Colleagues to Read YA Novels across the Curriculum (Teaching Young Adult Literature). September 94.

Muckingford. Case for the Autistic Perspective in Young Adult Literature, A. November 33–34.

From the Editor. July 13–15.

Orca: Case for the Autistic Perspective in Young Adult Literature, A. November 29–31.

Scorpio Races, The.

Seventy Authors Tell Their Stories. "History with Feelings": Nonfiction Titles for Teens (Off the Shelves). January 113.

Tuesdays with Morrie. Why Should We Have All the Fun? Encouraging Colleagues to Read YA Novels across the Curriculum (Teaching Young Adult Literature). September 95.

What is Something You've Done as an English Teacher That Took Guts? (Teacher to Teacher). July 23–24.

Subject Index

Characters and Character (September theme)
From the Editor. September 11–12.
How to Live? What We Can Learn from Ivan Ilych’s Death. September 52–56.
Most Likely to Succeed: Seeking Self-Knowledge in the Company of Characters. September 76–83.
Odysseus Deconstructed: Crossing the Threshold into Critical Thinking. September 61–66.
Putting Characters First in a Middle School Classroom. September 71–73.

Critical literacy

Death of Ivan Ilych, The How to Live? What We Can Learn from Ivan Ilych’s Death. September 52–56.

digital literacies
Putting Characters First in a Middle School Classroom. September 71–73.

disability
Case for the Autistic Perspective in Young Adult Literature, A. November 27–36.

Diverse learners
Embracing Intercultural Diversification: Teaching Young Adult Literature with Native American Themes. May 57–62.
“I guess I do know a good story”: Re-envisioning Writing Process with Native American Students and Communities. November 78–84.
diversity

Drama
Using a Prop Box to Create Emotional Memory and Creative Play for Teaching Shakespeare’s Othello. November 37–43.

Early-career teaching (see teaching, early-career; see also Mentoring and Teacher Development (January theme))
EJ Extra (feature)

EJ in Focus (feature)
Superman Is Dead: How We Help Students Make Sense of Literary Characters. September 27–33.
Teaching English in the Age of Incarceration. March 16–18.

English language learners
Assessing ELL Students in Mainstream Classes: A New Dilemma for the Teachers (Success with ELLs). January 126–29.
Developing Collaborative Systems for Learning (Success with ELLs). September 96–97.

Ethics

Film/television
Exploring the Connection between Graphic Novel and Film. November 64–70.

Finding Freedom
Building a Collective Understanding of Prisons. March 38–44.

From the Editor (feature)

Glass Castle, The

English Journal
Subject Index

graphic novels
Exploring the Connection between Graphic Novel and Film. November 64–70.

Harry Potter series

high school-college collaboration
Forming University and Teacher Partnerships in an Effort to Reframe and Rethink Mentoring Programs. January 63–70.
"Living Large and Taking Charge!" Students Read and Write Their Way to a High School Writing Center. May 21–27.
Online Writing Partnership, An: Transforming Classroom Writing Instruction. March 74–81.
What Happens When High School Students Write in a College Course? May 35–42.

High School Matters (feature)
"Juggling 400 Oranges":Calling All Mentor Teachers. January 13–15.
"These words are not mine": Are We Still Teaching Literature When We Use Adaptations? November 13–15.

Hole in My Life
Incarceration, Identity Formation, and Race in Young Adult Literature: The Case of Monster versus Hole in My Life. March 53–58.

In Memoriam (Feature)

inquiry

interdisciplinarity

Why Should We Have All the Fun? Encouraging Colleagues to Read YA Novels across the Curriculum (Teaching Young Adult Literature). September 92–95.

language

listening

literacy
Songs of the Caged Birds: Literacy and Learning with Incarcerated Youth. March 51–57.

literature (see Characters and Character)
Little Prince, The
Breaking Down Literature Boxes While Traveling with the Little Prince (Speaking My Mind). September 98–99.

media

Mentoring and Teacher Development (January theme)
Forming University and Teacher Partnerships in an Effort to Reframe and Rethink Mentoring Programs. January 65–70.
From the Editor, January 11–12.
“Juggling 400 Oranges”: Calling All Mentor Teachers (High School Matters). January 13–15.

With a Little Help from Their Friends: Making the Transition from Student to Teacher. January 87–92.

“Working with my mentor is like having a second brain/hands/feet/eyes”: Perceptions of Novice Teachers. January 78–86.

mentoring new teachers (see also Mentoring and Teacher Development (January theme)) Mentoring in Community (Mentoring Matters). March 103–06.
Positioning Student Teachers as Powerful Partners: Dancing without Bruised Toes (Mentoring Matters). September 84–87.
Reflection on Mentors and Mentoring, A (Mentoring Matters). July 88–90.

Monster
Incarceration, Identity Formation, and Race in Young Adult Literature: The Case of Monster versus Hole in My Life. March 53–58.

multicultural literatures
Building a Collective Understanding of Prisons. March 38–44.
Embracing Intercultural Diversification: Teaching Young Adult Literature with Native American Themes. May 57–62.

Subject Index

Night

nonfiction
Be Here Now: Young Women’s War Diaries and the Practice of Intentionality. November 44–50.
From the Editor. September 11–12.
Odyssey, The
Odysseus Deconstructed: Crossing the Threshold into Critical Thinking. September 61–66.

poetry
Again (Poetry). May 80.
At the Station (Poetry). November 133.
Carve (Poetry). March 93.
Challenging Perspectives on Young Adult Literature. May 69–73.
Dying in the Wine Dark Sea (Poetry). January 86.
Fields of Asphodel (Poetry). July 80.
Hummingbird Magnificat (Poetry). July 45.
I Am Dionysus (Poetry). May 81.
In the Afternoon I Play Chess with the Students (Poetry). March 96.
Newest Colossus, The, or When I Wasn’t Puerto Rican (Poetry). May 88.
Oil Sucks through Paper Plates (Poetry). March 96.
Oops, He Thought (Poetry). November 145.
Questions (Poetry). January 105.
Storytelling and the Years After (Poetry). November 137.
Teaching the Hundred to Tenth Graders (Poetry). September 47.
They Never Called Home (Poetry). January 120.
Transformation (Poetry). November 63.

popular culture

professional development (see also Mentoring and Teacher Development) reading
“Living Large and Taking Charge!” Students Read and Write Their Way to a High School Writing Center. May 21–27.
Songs of the Caged Birds: Literacy and Learning with Incarcerated Youth. March 31–37.

research

mini vocabulary lessons for maximum recall (research for the classroom)

hip-hop literature: the politics, poetics, and power of hip-hop in the english classroom (research for the classroom)

research for the classroom
Standards, Standardization, and Student Learning (Research for the Classroom). May 84–88.
Teaching Shakespeare (Research for the Classroom). March 111–14.

real-world connections
English Teacher as Writing Consultant, The: Taking Classroom Expertise into the Workplace. July 79–84.
“Living Large and Taking Charge!” Students Read and Write Their Way to a High School Writing Center. May 21–27.
Songs of the Caged Birds: Literacy and Learning with Incarcerated Youth. March 31–37.

relog"width="500"height="500"src="https://www.englishjournal.org/117/subject-index.jpg"/>
Subject Index

To Read or Not to Read: Five Approaches to Teaching Shakespeare (Research for the Classroom). March 111–14.
Using a Prop Box to Create Emotional Memory and Creative Play for Teaching Shakespeare’s Othello. November 37–43.

Speaking My Mind (feature)
Audacity of Empathy, The: It’s Still the Students, Stupid! July 102–03.
Billable Services List, A: Paying Teachers More Like Doctors. September 100–02.
Breaking Down Literature Boxes While Traveling with the Little Prince. September 98–99.
Posed to Partner: The 21st-Century School Librarian. May 94–06.
Robo-Grading and Writing Instruction: Will the Truth Set Us Free? July 104–06.

student resistance

teacher education
Online Writing Partnership, An: Transforming Classroom Writing Instruction. March 74–81.

Teacher to Teacher (feature) teaching, early-career (see also Mentoring and Teacher Development (January theme)) Mentoring Preservice and Early-Career English Teachers in Online Environments (Mentoring Matters). November 134–37.

Positioning Student Teachers as Powerful Partners: Dancing without Bruised Toes (Mentoring Matters). September 84–87.
Reflection on Mentors and Mentoring, A (Mentoring Matters). July 88–90.

Teaching English in the Age of Incarceration (March theme)
Building a Collective Understanding of Prisons. March 38–44.
From the Editor. March 11–12.
Incarceration, Identity Formation, and Race in Young Adult Literature: The Case of Monster versus Hole in My Life. March 53–58.
Songs of the Caged Birds: Literacy and Learning with Incarcerated Youth. March 31–37.
Teaching English in the Age of Incarceration (ElJ in Focus). March 16–18.
Using To Kill a Mockingbird as a Conduit for Teaching about the School-to-Prison Pipeline. March 45–52.

teaching for social justice (see also Teaching English in the Age of Incarceration [March theme]) technology to Kill a Mockingbird

Using To Kill a Mockingbird as a Conduit for Teaching about the School-to-Prison Pipeline. March 45–52.

visual literacy
Exploring the Connection between Graphic Novel and Film. November 64–70.
Teaching Classic Literature with Comic Books and Virtual Lit Trips. September 67–70.

vocabulary

Web resources

writing
Be Here Now: Young Women’s War Diaries and the Practice of Intentionality. November 44–50.
Designing a High School or Middle School Course (or Unit) in Professional Writing (Professional Writing in the English Classroom) July 94–97.

English Teacher as Writing Consultant, The: Taking Classroom Expertise into the Workplace. July 79–84.
“I guess I do know a good story”: Re-envisioning Writing Process with Native American Students and Communities. November 78–84.
Incarceration, Identity Formation, and Race in Young Adult Literature: The Case of Monster versus Hole in My Life. March 53–58.
“Living Large and Taking Charge!” Students Read and Write Their Way to...
Subject Index

a High School Writing Center. May 21–27.
Online Writing Partnership, An: Transforming Classroom Writing Instruction. March 74–81.
Trying to Find "The Funny": A Teacher Writing Group’s Inquiry into Humor Writing (Research for the Classroom). July 98–101.
What Happens When High School Students Write in a College Course? A Study of Dual Credit. May 35–42.

young adult literature
Case for the Autistic Perspective in Young Adult Literature, A. November 27–36.
Challenging Perspectives on Young Adult Literature. May 69–73.
"Change" as an Interdisciplinary Theme: YA Literature in the Content Areas (Teaching Young Adult Literature). January 121–25.
Embracing Intercultural Diversification: Teaching Young Adult Literature with Native American Themes. May 57–62.

Keeping YA Lit Off the Shelves and in Young Readers’ Hands (Off the Shelves). July 91–93.
Making an Impression: YA Authors and Their Influential Teachers. May 74–79.
Putting Characters First in a Middle School Classroom. September 71–75.
Teaching Young Adult Literature. September 92–95, January 121–25, May 89–90.
Why Should We Have All the Fun? Encouraging Colleagues to Read YA Novels across the Curriculum (Teaching Young Adult Literature). September 92–95.
YA Literature Belongs in the Classroom Because . . . (Teaching Young Adult Literature). May 89–90.

zines
NCTE’s Peer-Reviewed Journals

Language Arts
Peggy Albers, Caitlin Dooley, Amy Flint, Teri Holbrook, and Laura May, Georgia State University

Voices from the Middle
Doug Fisher, Nancy Frey, and Diane Lapp, San Diego State University

Award Winning English Journal
Ken Lindblom, Stony Brook University

English Leadership Quarterly
Susan Groenke, University of Tennessee-Knoxville

Talking Points
Carol Gilles, University of Missouri-Columbia

Teaching English in the Two-Year College
Jeff Sommers, West Chester University

College Composition and Communication
Kathleen Blake Yancey, Florida State University

College English
Kelly Ritter, University of North Carolina-Greensboro

Research in the Teaching of English
Mark Dressman, Sarah McCarthy, and Paul Prior, University of Illinois

English Education
Lisa Scherff, Florida State University and Leslie S. Rush, University of Wyoming

I love receiving the English Journal; it is the single most useful professional development resource I have.

–Jen Sabatelli, NCTE member and subscriber since 2004

NCTE members enjoy online access to ALL journals published more than two years ago!

National Council of Teachers of English

Join now:
http://www.ncte.org/join

Subscribe today:
https://secure.ncte.org/store/journals

Have questions? Call 877-369-6283.