Subject Index to Volume 52 (2017–2018)

First-Year Writing and Transfer

Donahue, Christiane, and Lynn Foster-Johnson. Liminality and Transition: Text Features in Postsecondary Student Writing, 52(4), 359–381

Wilder, Laura, and Robert P. Yagelski. Describing Cross-Disciplinary Analytic Moves in First-Year College Student Writing, 52(4), 382–403

Identity

Chisholm, James S., and Andrea R. Olinger. “She’s Definitely the Artist One”: How Learner Identities Mediate Multimodal Composing, 52(2), 122–155

De los Ríos, Cati V., and Kate Seltzer. Translanguaging, Coloniality, and English Classrooms: An Exploration of Two Bicoastal Urban Classrooms, 52(1), 55–76

Dyson, Anne Haas. A Sense of Belonging: Writing (Righting) Inclusion and Equity in a Child’s Transition to School, 52(3), 236–261

Early, Jessica Singer. Escribiendo Juntos: Toward a Collaborative Model of Multiliterate Family Literacy in English Only and Anti-immigrant Contexts, 52(2), 156–180

Johnson, Latrise P. Writing the Self: Black Queer Youth Challenge Heteronormative Ways of Being in an After-School Writing Club, 52(1), 13–33

Kerschbaum, Stephanie L., and Margaret Price. Centering Disability in Qualitative Interviewing (Forum), 52(1), 98–107

Lawrence, Ann M. (Dis)Identifying as Writers, Scholars, and Researchers: Former Schoolteachers’ Professional Identity Work during Their Teacher-Education Doctoral Studies, 52(2), 181–210

Metz, Mike. Challenges of Confronting Dominant Language Ideologies in the High School English Classroom, 52(4), 455–477

Qin, Kongji. “Doing Funny” and Performing Masculinity: An Immigrant Adolescent Boy’s Identity Negotiation and Language Learning in One US ESL Classroom, 52(4), 427–454

Methodology

Chisholm, James S., and Andrea R. Olinger. “She’s Definitely the Artist One”: How Learner Identities Mediate Multimodal Composing, 52(2), 122–155

De los Ríos, Cati V., and Kate Seltzer. Translanguaging, Coloniality, and English Classrooms: An Exploration of Two Bicoastal Urban Classrooms, 52(1), 55–76

Donahue, Christiane, and Lynn Foster-Johnson. Liminality and Transition: Text Features in Postsecondary Student Writing, 52(4), 359–381

Dyson, Anne Haas. A Sense of Belonging: Writing (Righting) Inclusion and Equity in a Child’s Transition to School, 52(3), 236–261

Metz, Mike. Challenges of Confronting Dominant Language Ideologies in the High School English Classroom, 52(4), 455–477

Qin, Kongji. “Doing Funny” and Performing Masculinity: An Immigrant Adolescent Boy’s Identity Negotiation and Language Learning in One US ESL Classroom, 52(4), 427–454

Kerschbaum, Stephanie L., and Margaret Price. Centering Disability in Qualitative Interviewing (Forum), 52(1), 98–107

Copyright © 2018 by the National Council of Teachers of English. All rights reserved.
Teacher Development

Hunt, Carolyn S. Toward Dialogic Professional Learning: Negotiating Authoritative Discourses within Literacy Coaching Interaction, 52(3), 262–287

Lawrence, Ann M. (Dis)Identifying as Writers, Scholars, and Researchers: Former Schoolteachers’ Professional Identity Work during Their Teacher-Education Doctoral Studies, 52(2), 181–210

Technology

Garcia, Antero, Kristina Stamatis, and Mary Kelly. Invisible Potential: The Social Contexts of Technology in Three 9th-Grade ELA Classrooms, 52(4), 404–426

Transnationalism and Multilingualism

de los Rios, Cati V., and Kate Seltzer. Translanguaging, Coloniality, and English Classrooms: An Exploration of Two Bicoastal Urban Classrooms, 52(1), 55–76

Early, Jessica Singer. Escribiendo Juntos: Toward a Collaborative Model of Multiliterate Family Literacy in English Only and Anti-immigrant Contexts, 52(2), 156–180

Garcia, Antero, Kristina Stamatis, and Mary Kelly. Invisible Potential: The Social Contexts of Technology in Three 9th-Grade ELA Classrooms, 52(4), 404–426

Metz, Mike. Challenges of Confronting Dominant Language Ideologies in the High School English Classroom, 52(4), 455–477

Qin, Kongji. “Doing Funny” and Performing Masculinity: An Immigrant Adolescent Boy’s Identity Negotiation and Language Learning in One US ESL Classroom, 52(4), 427–454

Writing Development

Prior, Paul. Setting a Research Agenda for Lifespan Writing Development: The Long View from Where? (Forum), 52(2), 211–219

Youth Literacy Practices

Chisholm, James S., and Andrea R. Oliger. “She’s Definitely the Artist One”: How Learner Identities Mediate Multimodal Composing, 52(2), 122–155

delos Rios, Cati V., and Kate Seltzer. Translanguaging, Coloniality, and English Classrooms: An Exploration of Two Bicoastal Urban Classrooms, 52(1), 55–76

Dyson, Anne Haas. A Sense of Belonging: Writing (Righting) Inclusion and Equity in a Child’s Transition to School, 52(3), 236–261

Garcia, Antero, Kristina Stamatis, and Mary Kelly. Invisible Potential: The Social Contexts of Technology in Three 9th-Grade ELA Classrooms, 52(4), 404–426

Hunt, Carolyn S. Toward Dialogic Professional Learning: Negotiating Authoritative Discourses within Literacy Coaching Interaction, 52(3), 262–287

Imbrenda, Jon-Philip. Developing Academic Literacy: Breakthroughs and Barriers in a College-Access Intervention, 52(3), 317–341

Johnson, Latrise P. Writing the Self: Black Queer Youth Challenge Heteronormative Ways of Being in an After-School Writing Club, 52(1), 13–33

Metz, Mike. Challenges of Confronting Dominant Language Ideologies in the Qin, Kongji. “Doing Funny” and Performing Masculinity: An Immigrant Adolescent Boy’s Identity Negotiation and Language Learning in One US ESL Classroom, 52(4), 427–454